Hellenic Artillery Blasts Encircled Albanian City of Koritza.

DUCE CLAIMS ADVANCE

Fascist Dive-Bombers Hit at Mountain Forces of Enemy.

(By Associated Press)

Italy's invasion machine was reported in Greek quarters to have stalled all along the snow-clogged mountain front in the nine-day-old war with Greece today.

Defenders of the little Hellenic kingdom had cut off 4,000 Fascist troops behind the lines, Greek dispatches said, and trapped 30,000 other Italian soldiers in the siege of Koritza, key supply base in Italian-conquered Albania.

Greek heavy artillery, firing from heights seized in fierce bayonet charges, was reported shelling the encircled city. Yugoslavian dispatches said the civilian population was withdrawing.

The Greeks were also said to have captured the Albanian town of Biglista, three miles northwest of the frontier, on the road to Koritza.

In the face of these Greek-claimed successes, Premier Mussolini's high command asserted that despite bad weather, bogging roads and slowing attack, the two main thrusts toward Phlorina and Ioannina (Jannina) still were showing progress.

"The movement of our units is continuing in the Epirus (Dioannina) sector, where our troops, overcoming lively resistance, have reached the headwaters of the Vojussa river," the Fascist high command said.

The Vojussa river rises in the rugged Findus mountain range in northwest Greece, north of Metsovo and about 35 miles from the Greek-Albanian frontier. Metsovo is 15 miles northeast of Ioannine, the immediate objective of the Italian drive in the west.

Italian dive-bombers repeatedly attacked Greek mountain batteries north of Ioannina, the Italian communique said, while other Fascist air squadrons bombed the Prevesa naval base, on the Greek west coast, and the port of Volos, on the east coast.

"Our air force developed intense actions in co-operation with land operations all day long," the high command declared, "bombing com-

Follow Election Trend at Screen Party Tonight, Then Get Complete Details In News-Journal Special Edition

THE most hectic election in years—and the most complete coverage by The News-Journal.

Will it be Willkie or Roosevelt? Bricker or Davey?

What about the county contests, and the special issues?

The News-Journal offers two-ply coverage of the entire election, from the presidential contest on down the list.

First, there will be The News-Journal election party, at which returns from Richland county, the state and the nation will be flashed on the famous silver screen as rapidly as they are received. Thus, Mansfielders will be able to follow the trend of all contests, as the votes are being tabulated.

Second there will be The News-Journal election extra which will be on the streets at 6 a. m. Wednesday, with the latest results available anywhere.

By that time, the presidential race will probably have been decided, as will the state contests and the county races.

The News-Journal extra will bring complete coverage on all of them, accurate and up-to-the-minute, as only an experienced, veteran election reporting organization can provide that coverage.

Attend The News-Journal party tonight, at The News-Journal office, to keep track of the early voting trend.

Read The News-Journal election extra early tomorrow morning for the FULL AND COMPLETE story of the entire election.

Mansfielders Set Record In Early Ballots

Morning Survey Indicates Nearly All Of City's 20,000 Registered Citizens Take Advantage Of Suffrage Right

Democracy's army marched today—50,000,000 strong—to the polls to determine whether Wendell L. Willkie or Franklin D. Roosevelt shall be the country's next president.

In some sections of the country, election day dawned dully and with rain. Mansfield and most of Ohio had rain early this morning, but indications were that despite the bad weather, a record number of ballots would be cast. The skies began clearing shortly before noon.

In Mansfield, the early voting was the heaviest on record in some precincts, and a News-Journal poll of precincts in all of the city's six wards indicated that the vote in the city would run close to the 20,000 registration.

At 10.30 a. m., after the polls had been open for one-third of the 12-hour period, voting had proceeded at a sensational pace.

In 20 precincts, with a total registration of 8,116, a total of 2,521 votes had already been cast. If that pace should be maintained during the balance of the day—making no allowance for a rush of late voters—the total vote in those 20 precincts would be 7,563.

Those figures indicated that the city vote would approximate 18,000, while it was expected that the vote in the entire county would be close to 35,000.

This would be almost 4,000 votes higher than in the 1936 presidential election, when 31,418 persons in Richland county went to the polls.

In that election President Roosevelt led Alfred M. Landon by 8,876 votes.

Election officials in the county reported that the election was going smoothly and quietly.

For the nation as a whole, it seemed certain that the estimate of 50,000,000 votes—a national record—would be realized, despite inclement weather.

In one big bloc of eastern and central states, which stand for one-fourth of the nation's total electoral vote, rain was forecast, with some light snow in portions of two of them. The states affected—pivotal points in the campaign efforts of both parties—were New York, Pennsylvania, Illinois, Ohio, Michigan, Indiana and Wisconsin. The accepted American election tradition is that rainy weather holds down the rural area vote without having any great effect on urban centers.

Despite the unfavorable forecast for eastern and central areas, the early hours of an historic election day witnessed the

How Rivals See Election Outcome

The election forecasts:

EDWARD J. FLYNN, Democratic national chairman: President Roosevelt to carry all but nine states, winning 427 of the 531 electoral votes; Wendell L. Willkie conceded 58 votes; rest doubtful.

REP. JOSEPH W. MARTIN, Republican national chairman: Willkie to win 324 electoral votes; Willkie to carry New York, Pennsylvania, Massachusetts, Illinois and Ohio and probably New Jersey, Rhode Island and Delaware.

FAULTY RADIO BEAM BLAMED IN AIR CRASH

Official Says Pilot Led To Death In Mountains By Irregular Signal.

(By United Press)

SALT LAKE CITY—Civil aeronautics board authorities today investigated the failure of a radio beam, which apparently led a United Airlines plane to destruction and 10 persons to instant death on jagged Bountiful peak in the Wasatch mountains.

There was little doubt that the failure of the north leg of the beam which guides planes into Salt Lake City from Elko, Nev., was responsible for the accident, which stopped the big airliner's clock at 3:34¼ a. m., E.S.T., yesterday. Preliminary investigation showed that a driving snowstorm, the first of the winter, had interrupted the signal.

C. V. Hall, United Airlines vice-president, said that CAB technicians had tested the beam, found it working irregularly and had warned pilots not to trust it—after Pilot Howard Fey had wandered off his course trying to reach Salt Lake City and crashed.

Hall admitted that Fey probably had been led by the faulty signal into the mountains, which have become a veritable "graveyard" for commercial aviation. Thirty-six persons have died in crashes in the vicinity during the last three years.

Searching parties reached the wreckage late yesterday afternoon, after it had been located from the air. Both motors of the plane had been driven through the wings and one wing was torn away. The fuselage was broken half-way back.

The bodies of Fey and Thomas Sandegren, co-pilot, were 25 feet from the wreckage and still strapped to seats. The body of Stewardess Evelyn Sandino was bent at

CONTINUE PROBE OF VANDALISM AT JUNIOR HIGH

Police Hunt Youthful Gang; House Numbers Stolen In Woodland Section.

While police continued their investigation of widespread vandalism at the Johnny Appleseed junior high school, officials at Senior high school disclosed today that 29 address markers, stolen in Woodland several days ago had been found on the school grounds.

Custodians who discovered the missing plates said that police were notified Saturday but today had failed to pick them up.

The numbers were reported missing yesterday by Woodland residents who said they had been taken from their lawns over Halloween. Most of the numbers had been purchased this fall.

Meanwhile detectives said they believed that a gang of youths was responsible for shattering seven windows at the new $400,000 Johnny Appleseed junior high school over the week-end.

Several large rocks and bottles were found in ground level classrooms yesterday morning. They had been thrown through the windows, tearing shades and damaging the interior of the rooms.

They warned that further acts of vandalism would result in police keeping children off the school grounds except during school hours.

Officers termed the destruction "malicious," pointing out that the stones had been thrown from close range as indicated by damage to a desk and blackboard in one of the rooms.

WILLKIE: Pleads For Unity In Nation In Final Address

By THEODORE F. KOOP

NEW YORK—(AP)—An election-morning appeal for national unity provided a whirlwind finish today to Wendell L. Willkie's presidential campaign—a finish similar to the one which climaxed his pre-convention drive for the Republican nomination.

Willkie, who as a self-styled "political amateur" entered the convention race only last spring, broadcast his closing words to the electorate shortly before 1 a. m.

Thanking his supporters, he said in a radio speech from a theater near Times Square:

"This great cause is the most sacred cause in all the world—the preservation of the free way of life in America. And that free way of life can be preserved in America only if we become a united people.

"For seven and a half years we have had discord, and we are having discord at a time when we look across the seas and see that it was discord and weakness from within that caused the democracies of Europe to collapse before totalitarianism."

Adding that election day was only the beginning of his "crusade," he declared, "United we stand; divided we fall. Let us become once again a nation united."

The candidate, who had worked at his campaign offices in the Hotel Commodore until midnight,

Willkie Votes Straight Ticket

NEW YORK—(AP)—Wendell L. Willkie cast his ballot at Public school No. 6, Madison avenue at 85th street, at 9:42 a. m. today.

Asked by a radio announcer how he was going to vote, he replied, "straight Republican." In a reply to a question by an election clerk he gave his occupation as "lawyer."

He went into the voting booth to the cheers of a crowd of several hundred persons. Mrs. Willkie had preceded him.

WOMAN BEATEN, ROBBED OF $100

Housewife Slugged After She Gives $100 To Gunman at Home Near Bellville.

Investigation of the slugging and robbery of Mrs. Philip Schelk, at her home two miles north of Bellville last evening, was held up temporarily today because of the highly nervous condition of the victim.

Deputy Sheriff Glenn Freeman, who investigated the hold-up last evening, said today that he had been unable to question Mrs. Schelk at length after the robbery but that he planned to talk to her again this afternoon.

Freeman was called to the Schelk home at 5:45 p. m. after an unidentified man had struck Mrs. Schelk as she went from the house to an adjoining woodshed, forced her to give him a wallet containing $100 and then had knocked her unconscious with the butt of his revolver. Her husband was not at home at the time.

Mrs. Schelk, who is about 60 years old, told Freeman that the man grabbed her and demanded the money in the house. At first she denied that there was money.

SUSPECT NABBED

Youth Held in Pennsylvania For Ohio Slaying.

JEFFERSON, O.—(AP)—Sheriff Jerry Benson said today he had been notified by Pennsylvania motor police in Washington, Pa., that they were holding Goodrich McCourt, 21, sought in the slaying of Andy Jana, 18.

Benson said he understood McCourt had agreed to waive extradition. The sheriff was not informed whether the youth surrendered or was captured as a result of a three-state hunt.

Benson immediately dispatched deputies to Washington to return the fugitive.

Jana was slain with a shotgun in a gravel pit 15 miles northeast of here Sunday. Prosecutor Ward Cross charged McCourt with murder after learning he had quarreled with his 18-year-old fiancee, accusing her of going out with Jana and another youth.

NAME TRIPLETS AFTER WILLKIE

Two Girls and Boy Become GOP Fans for Proud Parents.

NEW YORK—(INS)—There were three brand new Willkie fans today. Wendy, Louise and Willkie.

These were the names promptly bestowed by Mr. and Mrs. Carl Cuttita upon their triplets, two girls and a boy, who were born yesterday evening on the eve of the presidential election. The names were adapted from the name of the GOP presidential nominee, Wendell Lewis Willkie.

Papa Cuttita cast his ballot for Willkie.

14,000 KILLED

Churchill Reports Civilian Fatalities In Raid.

LONDON — (INS) — Fourteen thousand civilians and 300 soldiers have been killed in German air raids on Britain, Prime Minister Churchill advised the house of commons today.

Twenty thousand civilians and 500 soldiers have been wounded seriously, he said.

However, casualties are on the decline, according to Churchill. Since the weekly average in September was 4500, compared to only 3500 weekly in October.

DENIES CHARGE OF EXTORTION

Letizia, Free on $1,500 Bond, Waits Investigation By Federal Grand Jury.

Joseph Letizia, 50, of 381 Wayne street, former city and state employe was free on bond today following his arraignment before U. S. Commissioner Charles Ball in Canton yesterday afternoon on a charge of extortion.

Pleading innocent to the charge filed by federal agents, Letizia waived preliminary hearing and was bound over to the federal grand jury. Bond was fixed at $1,500.

The former state liquor store employe was accused in the af-

In addition, another Italian submarine took refuge in Tangier when hotly pursued by a British destroyer.

TO QUIT POST

Gen. Beightler to Resign as Ohio Highway Head.

CAMP SHELBY, Miss.—(AP)—Maj. Gen. Robert S. Beightler, commander of Ohio National guard troops in training here, plans to resign as Ohio highway director, it was reported reliably today.

General Beightler, on leave since the 37th division was mobilized Oct. 15, is understood to feel that because of the possibility the troops may be on federal duty more than a year he cannot ask Gov. John W. Bricker to operate the highway department for a long period under an acting director.

Hal G. Sours of Akron, Beightler's assistant in the highway department, now is acting director.

Beightler was not expected to forward his resignation to Bricker until after today's election.

Norris, Chillicothe pastor, his son-in-law. Married were Dr. Frederick A. Dowds, 27, of Birmingham, Ala., to Miss Anne M. Elliott, 23, of Moundville, Ala., and Rev. Barton O. Dowds, 24, of Wilkes-Barre, Pa., to Miss Kathleen L. Meek of Cleveland.

DOCTOR DIES

ST. LOUIS—(AP)—Dr. Quitman Underwood Newell, 54, who was to be installed as president of the Southern Medical association at its convention in Louisville, Ky., tomorrow, died yesterday.

Parade Climaxes Drive To Approve City's 1-Mill Levy

Led by a Boy Scout color guard and the Senior high school band the Citizens' Levy committee staged a parade through downtown Mansfield last night to climax its drive to obtain a favorable vote on the one-mill levy to improve municipal services.

The committee, headed by Herbert R. Slough, has been conducting a campaign for several weeks to acquaint voters with the need of the levy to finance improvements in the fire, police, parks, airport and playgrounds.

The parade included the band, outfitted in new uniforms, fire department apparatus, both old and new, and several floats portraying need for the improvement of the public parks.

There were floats depicting playground scenes, and C. P. T. students at the municipal airport marched to the music of the American Legion drum corps.

RED MEETINGS

AKRON—(AP)—The Akron board of education, although counsel held it was under no obligation to do so, voted yesterday to continue granting use of school buildings for Communist meetings.

Speed to Be Keynote of Tabulating Returns

Speed will be the keynote when the board of elections sets down tonight to tabulate the vote cast in Richland county's 92 precincts.

First to be counted will be the votes on the presidential ticket. Each precinct will tabulate its presidential ticket first and will phone the vote immediately to the election board.

At the election board, three special telephone wires will be in use to receive the presidential returns. The board will forward returns to the secretary of state's office in Columbus in blocks of 10 precincts.

Precinct boards will go to work on the balance of the ballots immediately after they have tabulated the vote for president and phone their totals to the election board.

The election board had Mansfield police and sheriff's deputies carry instructions to every precinct staff in the county early this morning. They were the usual instructions to close the polls at 6:30 p. m. The first procedure is to count the ballots in the box to see that the number checks with the number of ballots given out. If there should be more in the box than were given out, a number equalling the extras would be drawn out.

* * *

Because nearly 200 copies of official ballots were circulated over the county yesterday in a candidate's campaign, the board today issued special instructions for precinct workers to make certain that only ballots with stubs attached get into the ballot boxes.

* * *

Other instructions issued by the board and which some workers seemed to think were a joke were based on state law. It forbids any worker in any capacity at voting precincts to wear any kind of political badge, sign or insigna. Just to prove that it isn't a joke, board members pointed to the fact that prosecution and conviction on this violation can mean a stiff fine and jail sentence.

ROOSEVELT: Waits In Full Confidence Of Vindication

By DOUGLAS B. CORNELL

HYDE PARK, N. Y.—(AP)—President Roosevelt waited, "in full confidence of vindication of the principles and policies on which we have fought the campaign" for the votes of the people to determine today whether they would retain his leadership for a precedent-smashing third term.

Whatever the outcome of the election might be, he told the nation in an election eve broadcast that "after the ballots are counted, the United States of America will still be united."

Mr. Roosevelt decided to cast his own ballot shortly after noon in the town hall where his family has exercised the right of the franchise for decades.

That right, he said is "the most powerful safeguard of our democracy."

"The right to place men in office, at definite fixed dates of election for a specific term, is the right which will keep a free people always free. . . .

"After the ballots are counted, the real rulers of this country will have had their way, as they have had it every two years, or every four years, during our whole national existence.

The president mentioned vindication of campaign policies and principles in a statement he issued last night thanking those who had worked for Democratic nominees.

"As the campaign closes," he said, "I have a deepened conviction that the principles for which we are fighting transcend partisanship. They involve the prin-

ESTIMATE ON SEWER GIVEN AT CRESTLINE

Council Asks State Highway For Repairs on Street Resurfacing Job.

CRESTLINE—An estimate for the North Columbus street sewer was submitted by Engineer Kenneth Shaffer at the regular meeting of city council Monday evening. Under the assessment plan the cost to the village will be $75 and to the property owners $331. The estimated frontage assessment is eighty cents a lineal foot.

Council decided to communicate with the State Highway department regarding repair of several places on Main street where water stands. Main street was resurfaced by the highway department the past summer.

Complaints were also entered regarding the condition of the sidewalk in front of the Texaco service station on West Main street, the property owner to be notified in this instance, and regarding drainage in front of the John Plez property on North Seltzer street, this was referred to the street committee.

Mayor L. F. Waldbauer presided for the meeting and all members were present.

The pay ordinance amounting to $1,214.68 was allowed.

Following discussion of the matter council decided to send a letter to the school board asking for the board to continue giving the one mill to the city. The school board receives three mills and has kept two mills, giving the city one mill.

GIRL, 14, DIES

Ashland High School Student Had Been Ill Two Weeks.

ASHLAND — A freshman at Ashland high school, Wilma Alice Baker, 14, of 906 Union street, died at Samaritan hospital Monday evening after a two weeks' illness.

A member of the Tenth Street Brethren church, she is survived by her parents, Mr. and Mrs. George W. Baker; three brothers, Wayne of Sterling, Clarence of Camp Shelby, Miss., and Lyle at home; and one sister, Mrs. Dave Swartz of Marietta.

The body was taken to the Denbow-Baer funeral home, where friends may view the body until 1 p. m. Thursday. Funeral services will be held at the Tenth Street Brethren church Thursday at 2:30 p. m., with Rev. Charles Mayes, pastor, officiating. Burial will be made in Ashland cemetery.

SHELBY VOTE

Record of 3,600 Ballots For City Predicted.

SHELBY—A record of approximately 3,600 votes was predicted here today as Shelby went to the polls today to ballot on national, state and county candidates.

Rain was not expected to hurt the vote any here.

A number of groups have election parties planned for tonight. Members of Shelby Country club will meet at the club house for their annual party, while American Legion meets at its home.

Returns from the city's precincts will be tabulated at Laser and Hancock's insurance office as has been done in other years.

FINAL RALLY

BUCYRUS—A Democratic rally on Washington square following a caravan tour of the county, and Republican activity, mostly personal contact, closed the 1940 election campaign in Crawford county Monday night. A Bucyrus high school band concert closed the rally.

The caravan visited all of the county's communities where short talks were given by Judge Charles F. Schaber, Judge William J. Schwenck, Robert L. Moulton, and Kenneth M. Petri.

FUNERAL HELD

BUCYRUS — Last rites were held Monday afternoon in the Munz funeral home for C. W. Sweinfurth, 77, of 427 Plymouth street, who died in City hospital Saturday afternoon. Burial was made in Oakwood cemetery. The Rev. Charles Castle of West Charlston, O., conducted the service.

Survivors include the widow, Louella Beattie Sweinfurth, and three sisters, Mrs. Joseph King, Mrs. J. Harrer, both of Galion, and Mrs. William Sprow of Liberty township.

MAIL CARRIERS HOLD ELECTION

Willis Kaler Again Heads Association of Eighth District.

CRESTLINE—At the annual Eighth congressional district meeting of the Rural Mail Carriers' association held at the high school in Cardington Saturday evening, Willis Kaler of this city was again retained as president of the association.

Other officers were also re-elected and are E. W. McMichael of Bucyrus, vice president, and G. N. Geddis of Caledonia, secretary-treasurer.

Mr. Kaler presided for the meeting and 45 were in attendance. The meeting opened with a dinner served in the school cafeteria. Dinner music was furnished by an orchestra from the high school and Rev. Rush, pastor of the Methodist church in Cardington ,gave an interesting talk.

The next meeting of the association will be held in Marion in June.

Fire Protection Contract Delayed By Shelby Mayor

SHELBY—The fire protection contract approved with the city by Sharon township trustees Saturday hit a snag today.

Mayor W. R. Morris said that he would not sign the contract until it had been brought before city council again at its postponed regular meeting at 7:30 p. m. Wednesday at the city hall.

Mayor Morris said the contract called for Nov. 1 as its starting date. The old contract expired Oct. 15 which would give the township a 16-day period of "free" fire protection. The township has been receiving protection until an agreement can be reached.

At its last meeting, city council said that the new contract should start from the expiration date of the old contract. The contract approved by the township trustees does not do this, Mayor Morris pointed out.

OBSERVE 54TH ANNIVERSARY

SHELBY—Mr. and Mrs. W. M. Broderick, 49 Sharon street, celebrated their 54th wedding anniversary Monday at their home quietly.

Married on Nov. 4, 1886, Mr. and Mrs. Broderick, who are 81 years old and 74 years respectively, have lived almost their entire married life in Shelby. Mr. Broderick is a retired railroad employe.

Both are in good health. They are the parents of two children that are living. The children are a city mail carrier, William Broderick, and Mrs. Clarence Schill of Mansfield.

ROTARY MEETING

GALION — The Galion Rotary club accepted an invitation to attend an inter-city meeting at Cardington on Friday evening, Nov. 29, when the local club held its regular dinner meeting Monday night at the Maxwell House. Clubs from Cardington, Delaware and Galion, will join for the meeting.

Last night's program included a round table discussion on labor unions which was led by Walter Sindlinger. Two visitors, W. R. Conaway and Harry Kaiber, both of the Cardington club, were present.

VALUE OF COMPARISON TESTS EXPLAINED BY ASHLAND DEAN

ASHLAND—Results of the comprehensive tests given sophomores and seniors of Ashland college last year furnished the material for a talk by Dr. R. R. Haun, dean of the college.

The dean said tests give the officials a chance to compare Ashland college with other colleges where these tests are given.

Haun said the college ranked a little above normal for the first time in the past few years.

The tests also show the growth and development of the students. From the indications given in this field the curriculum is set up to some extent, the dean said.

Dr. Haun said that in the future tests of this sort may be substituted for the present requirements for graduation. At the present he noted they are used to determine wherein the student needs his help and to determine whether the student should be admitted to the upper level of work.

Finally Dr. Haun pointed out that these tests are beneficial in that they give the student the opportunity to compare himself with other students. In many schools, the dean said, they are used to determine vocational choices. In conclusion he urged the student who will soon be given the results of these examinations to use the data for their own gain and advantage.

CRASH INJURIES COST MAN'S LIFE

R. E. Monn, Cass Township, Dies In Shelby; Was In Accident Saturday.

SHELBY—R. E. Moon, 50, of Cass township died Monday night at Shelby Memorial hospital of injuries suffered when the car he was driving was hit by a machine at the intersection of State street and Bunker Hill roads five miles west of Shelby Saturday.

Mr. Moon suffered a fractured skull, concussion of the brain and a broken right arm. He never regained consciousness after the accident.

Mr. Moon was on his way home from a farm near Bunker Hill when his car was hit by a machine driven by Eldon McQuate of Shiloh. Moon apparently drove on the main highway without seeing the other car approaching.

Born Sept. 12, 1893 in Plymouth township, Mr. Moon had made his home in this vicinity his entire life.

Survivors include his wife, Jessie; five children, Phyllis, Joyce, Burton, Sara and Alice, all at home; one sister, Mrs. Ernest Kitzmiller of Mansfield; and three brothers, Charles of Norwalk, Lewis of Tiro and William at home.

Funeral services will be held at the Dye funeral home at 2 p. m. Thursday with Rev. Arthur Staples, pastor of First Methodist church, officiating. Burial will be made in the Greenlawn cemetery Plymouth.

BEEGLE RITES

MILLERSBURG—Funeral services for Mrs. Anna Beegle, 84-year-old resident of the county who died Sunday evening at the home of a daughter, Zenas Newell, St. Marys, O., will be held at 1:30 p. m. Wednesday at the Elliott funeral home here. Rev. H. H. Creager, pastor of Trinity Lutheran church where Mrs. Beegle had membership will have charge and burial will be in the Oak Hill cemetery, Millersburg.

Mrs. Beegle's husband, Rolland, whom she married in 1875, died in 1933. Besides the daughter at whose home she died there survives another daughter, Mrs. B. P. Snyder, Millersburg; four sons, Otto, of Elma, Wash., Lester, Rollo, and Lloyd of Millersburg; 13 grandchildren and 10 great-grandchildren.

CALLS EDUCATION FIRST LINE OF NATIONAL DEFENSE SYSTEM

SHELBY — "Education is our first line of national defense," E. C. Ramsey, foreign newspaper correspondent and traveler, told Shelby high school pupils Monday.

Ramsey ,who also was speaker for a joint dinner meeting of the Ad and Rotary clubs last night at First Methodist church, told of his experiences while traveling in the war-torn countries of Europe. He returned six weeks ago from abroad.

"The first three institutions to go when a dictator takes over a country," Ramsey pointed out, "are the home life, church and school." "These are the three greatest educating groups of a democratic government," Ramsey stated.

"American people do not realize how lucky they are to live in a country where you have freedom of speech, life and liberty," Ramsey revealed. He pointed out the strict censorship that exists in the countries run by dictators.

"Why even a small child of only six years may tell an act done against the state by their parents that would get their parents killed by the government in Germany," Ramsey disclosed.

"I am not afraid of the invasion of this country by Germany," Ramsey said, "because they are already here." He backed this statement up by revealing that there were 96 German Bund camps in the United States, all built near powder plants, army camps or some other place that could be overthrown if the United States got into the European conflict.

"Hitler calls these his storm troopers to be used to overthrow the American government," Ramsey pointed out.

"Countries in Europe will not starve this winter," Ramsey predicted. "Not one piece of grain should be sent to the European countries," he said, "as it would only be used to feed the German people. Spain will be the country to feel the hunger pain the most.

"Schools are the backbone of a democratic nation. In Europe where there are schools they are only used as filling stations. March in the room and get filled up with propaganda of the state government."

WAGE SCALE TO BE DISCUSSED

Shelby Council Expected To Set Pay For Police and Fire Fighters.

SHELBY—City council is expected to discuss a wage scale for the city's firemen and policemen Wednesday night.

The scale has been discussed by the recently organized legislation committee at a meeting of that group called by Chairman Frank Long. Long, city law director, and Councilmen Charles Swanger, Ross Sipe and Kenneth Rothlisberger make up this committee.

At the committee meeting, the members discussed an increase for two junior firemen, Harvey Evans and Edward Lysinger. The amount has not been definitely determined but a number of councilmen have talked about a $15 raise for Evans and $10 for Lysinger.

The scale would set the "top" wage of the firemen and policemen with a stepped up scale for new officers. Due to the fact that a number of new men have been added to both departments, a cut of 10 per cent given the regular firemen and patrolmen is not expected to be restored although the committee discussed this possibility.

The cut was taken by the regular firemen and policemen and their chiefs a number of years ago when the depression forced the department to cut their overhead. Fire Chief Eugene Schull and Police Chief Eugene Coffey have had their salaries restored, but the patrolmen and Assistant Fire Chief Jack Ward are still on a cut of $10 a month.

COMMITTEES

GALION—Committee chairmen for the year were appointed by the president, John Auer, at the regular meeting Friday night of the Hi-Y club. Those who will serve are: church attendance, Bill Richardson; devotions, Jim Benbow; service, Joe King; program, Jim Gilson; membership, Junior Schreck.

Reports of life at Camp Nelson Dodd last summer were given by John Auer and Elwood Baehr. These together with group singing and devotions, comprised the program.

MILLERSBURG—Herbert Anderson of Killbuck, laborer in charge of the State Highway department in Holmes county, has been sued by his wife, Pauline, for a divorce, custody of their five children, the household furniture, alimony for herself and the children and expenses of the case. The wife charges extreme crulty, non-support and gross neglect of duty.

DRIVER HURT

Bucyrus Motorist Suffers Head Injuries.

BUCYRUS — Donald Crouser, 17, of 238 East Mansfield street, was recovering in City hospital today from head injuries and a broken collarbone suffered over the week-end when the automobile he was driving collided with another driven by Junior Kafer of Sulphur Springs.

The accident occurred between Bucyrus and Sulphur Springs on route 98.

Crouser, according to the sheriff's office, lost control of his car on a curve at the Pfleiderer farm, ran off the road and returned into the path of the Kafer car.

No one was injured when a car driven by Leo C. Hartman, 376 Daisy street, Mansfield, and another driven by Samuel Harriger collided on the same road. Both cars were damaged, however.

ASHLAND BIRTHS

ASHLAND—Three births reported at Samaritan hospital are: A daughter to Mr. and Mrs. Raymond Clark of Claremont avenue, Friday night, a son to Mr. and Mrs. John Kubik of Cleveland, Sunday; a daughter to Mr. and Mrs. Mike Simkanin of near West Salem, Sunday.

RE-ELECTED

CRESTLINE—George Beck of North Columbus street was re-elected to serve as president of the congregation of Trinity Evangelical Lutheran church at its annual election of officers held following the Sunday morning worship service.

Other officers elected to serve for 1941 are Orie Garverick, vice president; James Boyd, elder; Ernest Weaver and Herman Gayhart, deacons; William Kress and Clarence Poffenbaugh, trustees; Mrs. Russell Sherer, financial secretary; Miss Bernice Cowell, recording secretary, and Charles Carlisle.

BURIED TODAY

Frank Masters Was Pioneer Ashland County Resident.

ASHLAND — Funeral services were held this afternoon for Frank Masters, 88, pioneer Ashland county resident, who died Sunday at the home of his son, Charles S. Masters, in Ashland.

Rev. A. A. Hunter, pastor of the Methodist church, officiated at rites at the Masters residence. Burial was in the Ashland cemetery.

Mr. Masters died in Samaritan hospital as the result of a fractured hip he received Oct. 6 when he fell at his farm north of Ashland.

Native of Tuscarawas county, Mr. Masters came to Ashland county when he was five years old. He lived on a farm near Ashland most of his life, moving to Ashland to live with his son several years ago.

AGED RESIDENT OF GALION DIES

Services Planned Thursday For Isaac Walker, 80, Retired Farmer.

GALION—Isaac Walker, 80, retired farmer and Galion resident, died Monday at 12:20 p. m. at the home of his son, Calvin Walker in Leesville. He had been ill for the past five months and was taken to the home of his son Sunday afternoon.

Mr. Walker was born Nov. 5, 1860, in Knox county, Ohio, the son of Mr. and Mrs. Isaac Walker. In 1883 he was married to Margaret Ness who survives.

Besides the widow there are six children surviving: Mrs. Verba Vanderheid of Cleveland; Mrs. Mary Seif of Tiro; Calvin Walker of Leesville; Mrs. Mark Rhinehart of west of Galion; John and Wilbur Walker, both of Galion. One sister, Mrs. Roy Baker of Woodberry, Ohio, 12 grandchildren and four great grandchildren, also are living.

Until a few years ago when he moved to Galion at 336 Grove avenue, Mr. Walker and his family lived one and one-half miles south of Galion. He was a member of the Church of Christ.

Funeral services which were being completed today, will be held Thursday afternoon in charge of the Volk funeral home of Galion. Friends may call at the home of the son in Leesville.

PRESENT PROGRAMS OF AMERICAN NUMBERS

Members of Mansfield Music Study Club Offer Program on Favorite Sons at Mrs. Claude Marks.

LAST NIGHT a program "Introducing a Few of America's Favorite Sons" was given when members of the Mansfield Music Study club met with Mrs. Claude Marks, Woodhill road. Mrs. Paul Watts served as program chairman and gave a paper which included biographical data about the composers and vocalists represented.

Mr. Watts opened the program with three modern American compositions including "David and Goliath" by Albert Hay Malotte, a favorite selections of John Charles Thomas's. Mrs. Claude Ewing, accompanied by Miss Elizabeth Burneson, sang "Breath Not Beloved" by Frank LaForge. Mr. Watts also presented another modern selections to which Mildred Crooks, wife of the singer, Richard Crooks, had written the words.

Lawrence Frank played two modern compositions by Beryl Rubenstein, native Ohio composer, after which Mrs. Watts gave some information on Walter Damrosch, his life and music, and Miss Burneson played a recording of his.

The next meeting will be held Dec. 2 with "Some Contrasts In Style" as the subject, and Mr. Frank as chairman. The artists to be studied are Richard Hageman, Edgar Stillman Kelley, Albert Spaulding, Helen Jepson, Leo Ornstein, Oley Speaks and Percy Grainger. Those who will take part on the program are Mrs. Fred Cahall, Mrs. Dean Eckert, Mrs. Emory Smith, John Grabler, S. K. Jorgenson and Miss Helen Hartman.

PLAY GAMES.

Mrs. Henry Poth was hostess to ten members of the Penguin club yesterday at her home, 118 Columbia avenue. Contests were played after the business session, and Mrs. Clarence Keefer won the prize. Red, white and blue appointments were used when refreshments were served. Mrs. Keefer will have the meeting of Dec. 2 at her home.

FOR CRISP BACON

If you like bacon dry and crumbly, here's how to fix it that way: Lay strips in a cold frying pan. Heat slowly and pour off the fat as soon as it collects. Turn frequently with a fork. The bacon is done when it has a dull appearance and is dry.

A cool or cold oven may ruin rolls or bread that otherwise would have been excellent, so be sure to use a pre-heated oven. Baking temperatures for yeast breads range from moderate (375 degrees F.) for richer doughs to moderately hot (425 degrees F.) for plain bread. Bread or rolls are done when they shrink slightly from the sides of the pan and sound hollow when thumped lightly.

Reviewer

Pictured above is Mrs. Margaret Rowland who will review "The Family" by Nina Sedrova at 1 p. m. tomorrow at the Ohio theater. Following the review the current movie will be shown. The program is being sponsored by the Dental Clinic association with proceeds from all tickets sold by the clinic representatives being used for dental care for indigent children. Tickets for the final two programs may be purchased at the Book Shop.

Cocoanut Waffles.

2 cups pastry flour
3 teaspoons baking powder
⅔ teaspoon salt
2 egg yolks
1 cup milk
5 tablespoons fat, melted
2 egg whites, beaten
½ cup cocoanut
1 teaspoon vanilla
¼ teaspoon lemon extract

Mix flour, baking powder and salt. Add yolks, milk and fat. Mix lightly. Fold in the rest of the ingredients and bake on a hot waffle iron. Serve warm.

Rising of yeast dough permits the yeast to develop, to leaven the dough, and to tenderize the gluten in the flour. Letting dough rise until doubled in bulk is a satisfactory rule for most hard wheat all-purpose flours. Doughs made from soft wheat all-purpose flours, common in the South, need rise only until almost doubled in bulk. If the imprint remains when the dough is pressed with a finger, the dough is light. Best rising temperature is 80 degrees to 85 degrees F.

Kentucky Town Scene Of Recent Nuptial Event

In a quiet ceremony performed at the Methodist parsonage at Greenup, Ky., by Rev. Loper Saturday, Miss Mary Ellen Swigart, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Edward Swigart, Greenville, Pa., and Gerald Butler, son of Mr. and Mrs. Clyde Butler, 310 Grace street, were married. For her marriage Miss Swigart chose a royal blue velvet dress, black accessories and a corsage of pink roses.

The couple was attended by the bridegroom's brother and sister-in-law, Mr. and Mrs. Ralph Butler, Mansfield. Mrs. Butler chose a teal blue suit with rose accessories and a pink rosebud corsage.

Mrs. Butler attended Penn high school at Greenville, and Mr. Butler attended the Shreve high school. He is employed at the Tappan Stove company. The couple is at home at 268 Spring street.

Auxiliary Has Annual Election

Election of officers was held yesterday evening at the sixth annual dinner party of the Women's auxiliary to the International Typographical union at the Country Kitchen on the Amoy road. There were 13 members and one former member, Mrs. Howard Goodrich of Toledo, in attendance.

Mrs. Harold Merryman is the new president, and Mrs. Harlan Weimer, vice president. Mrs. W. W. Ferbrache has been chosen treasurer, and Mrs. Marion Day, secretary. Mrs. Emma Fisher will serve as the guide. Members in charge of last evening's entertainment were Mrs. Harold Bracy, Mrs. James Gills and Mrs. Robert Otis of Shelby

On Dec. 3, the members will meet at the home of Mrs. Bracy on Altamont avenue for a Christmas party and gift exchange.

Elect Mrs. Sutton To Head Chi Omega Alumnae Group

MRS. WAYNE SUTTON was elected president of the Chi Omega Alumnae club yesterday evening during a meeting at the home of Mrs. H. M. Butzloff, 411 Scholl road. Miss Martha Buesser is the new vice president, and she also will act as the program chairman.

The meeting was in charge of Mrs. Robert Beck of Crestline, retiring president, and the other officers named were Miss Florence Robison, secretary; Mrs. Lister Graf of Loudonville, treasurer, and Mrs. Earl P. Gaar, social chairman. Mrs. Beck and her retiring officers, Miss Marianne Springer, vice president, and Mrs. Eugene Miller, treasurer, composed the nominating committee.

The group decided to give a Christmas basket to an indigent family, and those who will take care of this project include Mrs. Butzloff, Miss Dorothy Corrigan and Mrs. Gaar. Following the business, articles were read from the sorority's national magazine.

At a late hour, the hostess and her associate, Mrs. R. M. Beatty, served a buffet luncheon. The table was decorated with autumn flowers and tall, lighted orange tapers. Mrs. Gaar presided at this time.

Mrs. Beck has invited the members to her home, 508 West Bucyrus avenue, in Crestline for a Christmas party on Dec. 2. Mrs. Sutton, Miss Robison and Miss Wilma Walker will plan the entertainment for this affair, which will be a white elephant party and Christmas gift exchange.

Ability to Endure Amazing

By BEATRICE FAIRFAX

Recently English women were shopping frantically, buying pretties, silk stockings, face powder and rouge before the British purchase tax, which is to raise $550,000,000 a year, went into effect.

The carneage in Europe makes one think of that line in Tennyson's "Brook": "For men may come and men may go, but I go on forever."

Men are killed, homes are blown to bits, ancient cathedrals fall, dead women and children are pulled from shattered buildings—yet life goes on. Woman's capacity to endure in the midst of horror is beyond understanding. Better perhaps that most of them cannot define the force that keeps them endlessly at work with the world's business — stealing from one bomb shelter to another, feeding their children on what's to be had, bearing babies in maternity hospitals open to destruction. With these horrors on every side, women keep on when it would seem so much easier to die.

The last day that women could buy the feminine things they have always loved to own. English women went shopping. It was like the week before Christmas. According to dispatches, they picked their way over mountains of debris. They swarmed into such department stores as were left, to buy their pretties, for life must go on.

In the face of unbearable horrors, these women know they must keep the morale of their men high—to look their best, to make the men feel their women are worth fighting for; that home and country is more than an empty phrase.

There is nothing new about this dogged fortitude on the part of women when war rages. It goes back to the beginning of things, to the warfare of tribes in the Aegean.

Along with the pretties and the cosmetics the English women bought, there was reported an overwhelming sale of slacks. For these women do not bother to be beautiful when they help pick up after a shelter has been wrecked, or when they carry food from a soup kitchen to a neighbor too ill to go for it.

As usual in war, women have the harder part to bear. Flying out into the night to save what a man feels is worth saving, gives to the soldier a sense of consecration. But there is no exultation in the deadening anxiety a woman must endure before she gets word that the plane her husband, brother or lover piloted has not returned.

Marriage Meddlers

By ADELE GARRISON

Continuation of "Married Comrades"

"I don't know anything about the gang you say is outside," she went on, "but you can be sure Mr. Leslie isn't one of them. He's too perfect a gentleman to mix with such trash."

My father smiled at us sardonically, and I could not tell what was his opinion of her veracity.

"Miss Arlen tells me," he said, "after some—persuasion—" and I saw Avis glare vindictively at him, "that Mr. Leslie is her fiance, and that he has told her the farmhouse holds hidden treasure, belonging to his people, and that he is coming to get it secretly, because if I knew of it, I would confiscate it in the name of some 'fool law or other'."

"And that's just what you would do," Avis shrilled defiantly, but my father did not even look at her, and I realized that his "persuasion" while effective had not included anything calculated to terrorize her.

"Just how she is going to admit him, she will not tell us," my father went on serenely, "so we shall have to lock her up until she is willing to enlighten us on that point. Harry, will you and Lillian lock her in the room nearest this, and then come back here. Tie her up so that she can't move around much."

Lillian gave me a wink as she left the room which told me the assignment was a welcome one, for in her own parlance, Avis is one of her "pet peeves."

"Will you please repeat what you told me when Avis could not hear you?" he said.

"She does not know, or pretends not to know, the identity of the besiegers," Mr. Veritzen began promptly. "But she says there is a secret passage to the attic of which only Jack Leslie knows, an old family secret, and that he is coming through that. He wants her to be in the attic at three o'clock every morning, so that she will be there to welcome him when he does come."

"And Jack Leslie told that cherished secret of his to a flannel-mouthed little fool like Avis Arlen," Lillian commented caustically. "He's either crazy or he must have over-estimated her loyalty under 'persuasion,' and underestimated your powers in that direction.

"And if she's telling the truth," Lillian went on, "and I think she is—she's a fool and a mean little rat, but I don't think she's deep in this, she's too fond of her own neck to get it into a noose—why in the hinges of the hot place does Leslie want her here for? He doesn't need her to get in!"

"We probably shall know in time," my father said cryptically, and Lillian and I exchanged glances with the conviction that he already was fairly sure of Leslie's motive.

"Of two things I am sure," my father continued. "One is that Leslie has definitely crossed the border that divides sanity from madness, which, however, does not lessen his diabolical cunning. The other," he smiled at us, "is that you'd better get some sleep while you can."

Lillian and I went down stairs upon the dismissal, but I could not sleep. All my soul was following Dicky down the unknown dangerous road he was traveling for the deliverance of the girl, "Babs."

At one o'clock I went to my little study to relieve Miss Whitlock's watch upon Edith.

"I was waiting for you to come," the nurse said. "She has come back to consciousness, and I believe her madness is over."

I bent over Edith, and she looked at me with eyes that, though tortured, had lost their look of lunacy.

"Has Dicky come back?" she quavered.

"Not yet," I answered steadily.

"I may have sent him to his death, Madge," she said, "but I had to. If I could have seen him before—there might have been time—but he wouldn't see me. You see, I had only one thought, to save Dicky, and I had completely forgotten the girl, Babs.

"She wasn't that woman's sister," Edith's tired voice went on, "but a girl the woman had in her power. She forced Babs into some pretended despicable situation in order to blackmail Dicky, but the girl wasn't really to blame, although Dicky thought she was. But Babs balked when the plot to capture and torture Dicky was revealed to her. She pretended to agree, but she came to me and tipped me off about the whole business. And in my insanity I forgot all about her."

She shivered violently, and Miss Whitlock tucked a warm shawl around her.

"You know what double-crossers get," she said. "The woman and her gangster-sweetheart are in custody, but there are others of the gang loose, and their plot is linked to this one of Leslie's. I had to tell Dicky, Madge. You see that, don't you? And he had to go, to try to save her."

"I see it all, Ede," I said gently.

"If I could atone," she moaned, "for all I've done to you."

"You can help me in one thing," I said, for I saw that despite her abysmal misery, the light of sanity was in her eyes again.

"What?" she asked with sudden energy.

"Pledge me your solemn word you will not attempt to take your own life."

Refining Skin Difficult

One of the toughest jobs the beauty operator has to tackle is refining the texture of the skin. It's a long, slow grind and has to have the co-operation of the patient. It's no fun having a complexion that looks like an old pin cushion full of small punctures. A foundation cosmetic will shade them down a bit, but the condition is extremely discouraging, and she who suffers from it is justified in lifting her voice in lamentations.

This skin defect is a long time coming and it isn't likely to get going in a hurry. To hasten its departure it is necessary to have due regard for the laws of health and diet and to give the skin surface daily care. No stinting, no skipping. The stop-and-go beauty seekers might as well not bother. But they shouldn't bother about any beauty projects, since time is not with us, especially if the heydey of youth has been passed.

The coarse skin, like coarse hair, is sometimes an inheritance, and it is a mean ancestor that hands it along. It may result from excessive activity of the sebaceous glands, activity caused by eating fried foods, pastries and rich sauces. Hearty eaters nearly always have coarse skins.

Cut down on proteins and rich foods. Fuel up on fish, poultry, green salads, vegetables, fruits, cereals. Leafy vegetables and fruit juices act favorably upon the complexion. It is just as well to eat for beauty's sake as well as for the gratification of the appetite. Few women realize how much the balanced diet has to do with appearance, the condition of the skin, hair and finger nails, as well as the health of the musculature of the body.

Oily cosmetics should be used sparingly if the skin is coarse, should not remain on overnight. Warm water, which is necessary for cleanliness of the epidermal coat, should invariably be followed by an ice cold rinsing. An ice rub once a day is on the beauty calendar.

If soap is irritating, substitute a cleansing meal. You can find these preparations on all cosmetic counters.

When soap is used at night, a cold rinsing is sufficient in the morning, followed by the application of an astringent. Witch hazel serves very well for that purpose. Cold water must be used freely to keep the circulation on the go. Good circulation helps to keep the skin fine and of good coloring.

Use a light powder. Before applying it, pat in a foundation lotion; you will find special ones suitable for a coarse, oily skin.

The daily bath should be a habit, not a quick jump in and jump out of the tub, but a rousing scrubbing with a brush to encourage the skin to function normally.

HOROSCOPE

For Wednesday, November 6.

DIFFICULT and dubious situations are the auguries based on adverse positions of major planets. Although there are portents of many frying and stubborn issues, with things pulling, discordantly, both ways, yet good judgment, well-organized plans and efficient executive ability might switch menacing circumstances into profitable and gratifying channels.

Those whose birthday it is have a prophecy of a year in which their sound ideas, expansive urges, and fine abilities may assist them through dangerous shoals, where dogged and determined situations must be wisely navigated.

A child born on this day may have some definitely conflicting traits of character to be composed, having large and expansive aims as well as being actuated by grasping, crafty, selfish and morbid ideals. Yet a fine social sympathy should dominate eventually, giving popularity and prestige.

BARCLAY ON BRIDGE

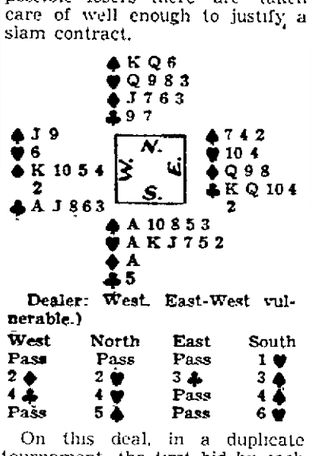

By Shepard Barclay

"The Authority on Authorities"

SHOWING A SECOND FIT

Ordinarily, when a satisfactory fit in a major suit has been found, it is unwise to bid other suit lengths and thereby give the opponents information which may aid them in the defense of the hand more than it will help your side in the bidding.

But there are times when advanced players find it advisable to probe the situation in a side suit, in order to determine whether possible losers there are taken care of well enough to justify a slam contract.

Dealer: West. East-West vulnerable.)

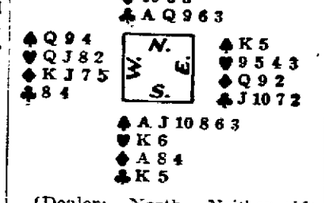

West	North	East	South
Pass	Pass	Pass	1 ♥
2 ♦	2 ♥	3 ♣	3 ♠
4 ♣	4 ♥	Pass	4 ♠
Pass	5 ♠	Pass	6 ♥

On this deal, in a duplicate tournament, the first bid by each player was the same at a number of tables. South on his second turn, however, produced various bids at the different spots. In one case he bid 4-No Trumps, the Blackwood convention, and after his partner's response of 5-Clubs showing no aces, he decided to sign off at 5-Hearts. At another table, South's second bid was the diamond suit which West called to show no losses, but when North refused the invitation to show any aces, merely returning to hearts, the side quit at game. One South, after hearing his partner's free raise of hearts, took a chance with a jump to 6-Hearts.

The most expert pair in the game used the bidding shown. After hearing his partner's free raise, South felt that slam depended on heading off spade losers more than any other factor. So he bid his spades on his second turn and then rebid them on his third turn. This showed they were at least five cards long, and that hearts were longer because bid first. It also was clear to North that South was trying to find out whether North could stop spade losers, so he showed that ability with 5-Spades. South then went on to his 6-Hearts, feeling almost certain the slam must be in the cards.

Tomorrow's Problem.

(Dealer North. Neither side vulnerable.)

If North bids and rebids his clubs, and South winds up in 4-Spades, what should West lead if he is seeking a top score on this deal in duplicate play?

THEATERS

Continuing Kildare Series.

"Dr. Kildare Goes Home," showing beginning Wednesday at the Ohio, is one of the popular series in which Lew Ayres, Lionel Barrymore and John Shelton join hands to establish a clinic in a country town and make the old-fashioned community "live again and like it." Like its predecessors, it is a medical mystery picture in which dramatic moments in medical science are blended with comedy and human emotions.

John Barrymore In Lead.

"The Great Profile," coming Wednesday at the Madison, is the hilarious story of a famous stage Romeo whose nagging wife heckles him so persistently and fiercely that he goes berserk on the stage. He winds up by making the whole nation howl with amusement as he ad libs, burlesques and brawls his way onto the nation's front pages. No one could play this role more realistically than John Barrymore who is co-starred with Mary Beth Hughes. Co-feature is "Cherokee Strip," starring Richard Dix.

Young Love In London.

In "21 Days Together," at the Park, Laurence Olivier is seen as the younger brother of a distinguished barrister, on his way to a judgeship. Vivien Leigh appears as a young refugee in London, in love with Olivier. Their idyllic romance suddenly is shattered when her bestial husband unexpectedly returns. Second attraction is "You Can't Fool Your Wife," with Lucille Ball and James Ellison in the leads.

Impressive Drama.

With an impressive cast which includes William Holden, Martha Scott, Frank Craven, Fay Bainter, Thomas Mitchell, Guy Kibbe, Beulah Bondi and Stuart Erwin, Sol Lesser's production of Thornton Wilder's Pulitzer prize play "Our Town" is showing at the Ritz. Second feature is "We Who Are Young," with Lana Turner and John Shelton in the leads. The story concerns a young man, struggling on a meager salary to try to make a home for his bride, only to be battered down time and again by inflexible rules that govern lives of millions.

Cheese Substitute For Meat

A cheese souffle is a good meat substitute, and a nut bread is an excellent accompaniment. This bread also makes good sandwiches for after school snacks.

Today's Menu.

Cheese Souffle with Tomato Sauce
Baked Potatoes
Cracked Wheat Nut Bread
Broccoli
Celery Carrot Sticks
Apple Pie Coffee or Tea

* * *

Cheese Souffle.

2 tbsps. butter
3 tbsps. flour
½ cup milk
Few grains cayenne pepper
3 eggs
1 cup grated American cheese
2 tsps. baking powder
½ tsp salt

Melt butter, add flour and seasonings, and when well mixed add milk stirring to keep smooth, then add milk gradually, cook until thick and add cheese. When cheese has melted, take from fire, add yolks of eggs beaten until light. Cool mixture and fold in baking powder and beaten egg whites. Bake in greased dish for 25 minutes in moderate over at 325° F. Serve as soon as baked. Will serve 4. Heat a can of prepared tomato soup, season to taste and use for sauce over souffle.

* * *

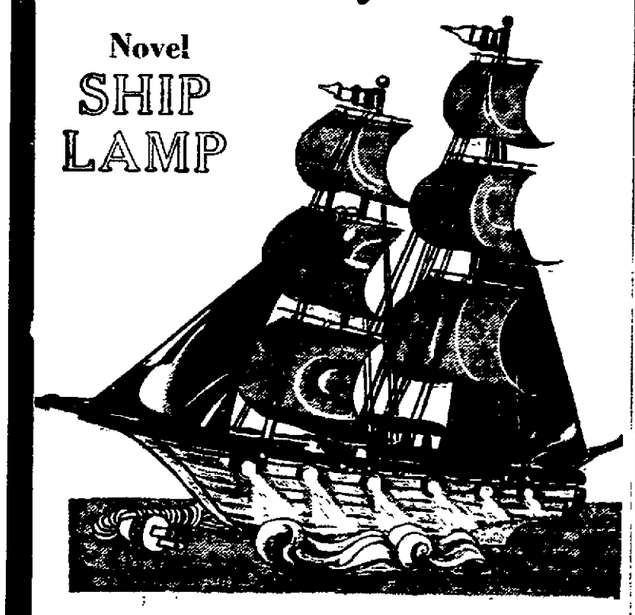

Cracked Wheat Nut Bread.

1 egg
½ cup sugar
½ cup milk
1 tbsp. shortening
½ cup cracked wheat
1½ cups bread flour
½ tsp. salt
1 tsp. baking powder
¾ cup nut meats

Beat eggs and sugar until light, add milk, to which melted shortening has been added. Add cracked wheat. Sift dry ingredients and mix with nutmeats (walnuts prefessed) cut up coarsely. Beat well. Fill greased bread pan two-thirds full and bake in moderate oven one hour and 15 minutes.

Massillon Tops State High School Grid Rankings

Tigers Take Leading Berth With Victory

Club's Impressive Win Over Toledo Waite Pulls Votes From Many Spectators.

By FRITZ HOWELL

COLUMBUS—(AP)—If they were voting on the Ohio high school football champion today—instead of the presidency, etc.—it would be Massillon's Tigers by a landslide.

Some of the other schools would pick up a few votes from scattered precincts, but most of them would be of the "complimentary" nature.

The Tigers erased last year's closest opposition, Toledo Waite, by 28 to 0 on a rain-swept grid before 22,000 fans over the week-end. Waite, winner of 11 games last season, including the Buckeye Bowl battle with Portsmouth, made only one first down against the Tigers.

It was Massillon's 31st consecutive win, and the 75th in their last 78 games, one of the other three being a tie. The terrible Tigers have won eight straight this year, and the foe hasn't scored a point.

Getting a bit of home town support for the title laurels would be West Jefferson, Oxford McGuffey, Xenia O. S. S. O. Home, Bexley, Arlington and Newark, each of which racked up its eighth victory in the week-end tilts.

Five teams seeking their eighth conquest fell out of the select class, four by defeat and one through a deadlock, as upset after upset swept over the collegiate gridirons. Knocked out of the unbeaten class were Toledo Waite, Cuyahoga Falls, Hudson, and Carrollton, while Columbus North was held to a 6-6 deadlock by Columbus South last night.

Others beaten for the first time after winning six consecutive tilts were Pandora, Hillsboro, East Liverpool and Springfield Central Catholic.

On the heels of the leaders, with seven straight victories were Orrville, Dennison and Cleveland West Tech. Newark reached the eight-victory class Monday night with a 32-6 win over Zanesville.

Heading the touchdown parade is Duane Traught, Arlington's 180-pound senior fullback, who has amassed 170 of his unbeaten team's 310 points. Willard Colby, senior halfback of the O. S. & S. O. Home of Xenia, who counted 33 points as Ohio Deaf was swept aside 70 to 7 over the week-end, is next with 143.

Other top-flight scorers include Athie Garrison of Canton McKinley, who has 127 after a 19-point splurge against Steubenville Wells, and Eugene Fekete of Findlay, with 98, after a 19-point afternoon against Lima Central. Fekete scored two touchdowns, booted a field goal, and kicked four extra points, in addition to tossing passes for the other two touchdowns as Findlay won 31-10.

Quarterback Bob Slaughter, London's senior "one-man gang"—has 93 points for eight games. He has 15 touchdowns to his credit, while the rest of the squad has but three. Horace Gillom, Massillon's All-Ohio end, was held scoreless for the fist time by Waite, and hung on to his total of 90 points.

Martins Ferry, in beating East Liverpool for the 16th time in 17 starts against that club, uncovered Jimmy Proakis, left half, who scored all the touchdowns, one on a 68-yard run. It was East Liverpool's first loss of the year, the Potters being unable to get by their old jinx.

The week-end games left only Massillon, Orrville, Dennison and Cleveland West Tech still unsullied of the group which went "clean" through the 1939 campaign. New Philadelphia, which reached the heights with an unbeaten squad a year ago, has hit bottom this year with eight losses in a row.

LAST NIGHT'S BOWLING SCORES

John Kramer of the Optimist club set the individual pace at the Meder Recreation alleys last night.

Bowling against the Rotary team, Kramer hit 634 on games of 187, 221 and 226. He led his team to three wins over the Rotary outfit.

Bill Donnellan of the Liederkranz team topped the keglers in single games. He smashed the pins for a fine 243 game.

The American Legion set a team high last night by coming through with a 1025 total in the final game. Eddie Meder trailed Donnellan, Kramer with a 618.

Shelby High Renews Drive For NCO Circuit Grid Title

SHELBY—Shelby High School Whippets will renew their drive for the football championship of the North Central Ohio conference when it meets Galion at Heise field in Galion at 8 p.m. Friday in its final circuit contest.

* * *

This week will close the football schedule for the league schools in one of the closest grid races ever witnessed by league fans.

Three top ranking teams are tied for first place in conference play. Shelby, Bucyrus and Marion are sharing the title honors this week. The teams must win their remaining games in the league this week to split the title.

Shelby, winner of six out of seven games, plays the weakest team in the league, Galion. Marion, winner of 11 out of the past 12 games and defending champs of the conference, will play at Mt. Vernon. Bucyrus, loser of only one game in the league will play host to Ashland.

Coach William Query is expected to bring several new faces into the varsity lineup this week in an attempt to stage a comeback after Shelby's defeat by Marion two weeks ago by a score of 14 to 6. This was Shelby's first defeat in seven starts.

The Whippets have been resting and expect to be in the best condition of the season Friday. Stiff drills are planned by Coach Query this week in an effort to improve the Whippets' blocking which looked bad in the Marion game.

* * *

A large number of Shelby fans are expected to go to Galion to witness the final league contest for the Whippets. If Shelby wins it is assured of at least a tie for first place in the conference.

Weaver Wins Decision

Cops Main Event In Weekly Wrestling Card.

Buck Weaver won the decision over Maurice LaChappell in the final event of the weekly wrestling card at the Doehla-Saprano Athletic club last night.

Weaver took the first fall in 17 minutes, lost the second and came back to cop the third.

LaCrosse was disqualified in the semi-final bout for striking the referee, giving the bout to Sevensky. Bob Steele won the decision over Speedy Martin in the preliminary match.

Tygers Meet Canton

Two Backs on Sidelines as Mansfield Prepares For Bulldogs.

WITH Jim Templeton and Bill Doolittle on the sidelines with injuries, the Mansfield high Tygers started preparing today to invade Canton to face the Canton McKinley Bulldogs on the gridiron Saturday afternoon.

Templeton suffered a hip injury and Doolittle sprained his ankle when Ashland upset the Tygers 7 to 6 Saturday and Coach Paul Snyder and the club physician don't think either player will see action Saturday.

* * *

Mansfield faces a club that has marked up seven victories in eight games and the Tyger victory chances are slim.

* * *

Mentor Snyder is not sure who will replace the two backs, but gave indications today that sophomore talent may get the call against McKinley.

* * *

The Tygers suffered a letdown against Ashland, but Snyder believes his proteges have shaken it off and will give Canton a battle.

Name Indian Pilot Soon

Roger Peckinpaugh, Luke Sewell Leading Candidates.

CLEVELAND—(AP)—The choice of a new Cleveland Indians manager drew near today with most fans regarding the leading candidates as Luke Sewell and Roger Peckinpaugh.

Alva Bradley, president of the club, reported "I believe I will have a definite announcement to make early next week."

* * *

Stanley (Bucky) Harris eliminated himself as a candidate last night by signing a contract for another term as manager of the Washington Nationals. Bradley had discussed the Cleveland job with Harris.

Sewell, former catcher and coach of the Indians for the last two years, and Peckinpaugh, former manager of the tribe, are the only others whom Bradley has admitted considering.

Regarding Harris, Bradley commented, "I had just about eliminated him from my mind anyway."

Even before directors of the Cleveland club announced they would not rehire Oscar Vitt as manager, Bradley obtained permission of Clark Griffith, president of the Washington team, to talk to Harris and did so.

It was rumored that Harris favored a three-year contract while Bradley hires on a one-season basis. Harris signed with the Nationals for one year however.

THE GREAT BLACK REMUS TO BE SOLD TOMORROW

COLUMBUS — (U.P.)—The Great Black Remus, largest horse in modern harness racing, who finished second in the famed Hambletonian this year, goes under the hammer tomorrow when the annual Ohio Horse Sale company auction begins.

Remus, co-owned by Harry Short, Columbus, who piloted him to second money in the blue ribbon classic, will be among approximately 75 harness horses to be sold. The Ohio-owned Tom Manning, winner of the 1939 Ohio Governor's cup, is also among those listed to be sold. Others include Weetamoe, King S, Bobbie Crispin and St. George.

JOE McCARTHY BACK

NEW YORK—(U.P.)—Joe McCarthy will manage the New York Yankees for the 11th successive year next season, President Ed Barrow said today. No figures for the agreement were announced but it was believed that McCarthy would continue to receive $35,000, his current salary.

GODOY WILL FIGHT

NEW YORK—(U.P.)—Arturo Godoy, Chilean heavyweight, has been matched for a 10-round bout with Tony Musto of Chicago at the Christmas Fund show in Cleveland, Dec. 2, it was announced today.

Rams Set to Stop Loudonville High

By BOB FLOHR

IT'S "do or die" for the Madison high Rams this week as they return to the practice field to prepare for the invasion of Loudonville high for Madison's homecoming game at Madison field Friday night.

Friday's game will be the final one of a disastrous season for the Rams, who are hoping to vindicate themselves in the eyes of Madison rooters and old grads who will return for the homecoming tilt, by chalking up a victory.

The Rams have already played eight contests this season and have yet to win a single one of them. Their latest defeat was suffered at the hands of Bellville high last Saturday by a score of 7 to 0.

Last week's score was the smallest by which the Rams have been defeated this year.

Coach Al Fendrick has been trying since the opening game with Wooster in September to work up a winning combination with his proteges, but as yet they have been unable to strike a winning stride.

Walt Weimer and Bob Heichel have proved the spearhead of the Madison attack this year. The Madison line has proved the greatest amount of trouble for Fendrick in past tilts.

Seven College Combines Receive First Place Votes

By HUGH S. FULLERTON, jr.

NEW YORK—(AP)—The football season is nearing the home stretch, and so is the pace for the No. 1 position in the Associated Press ranking poll for the 1940 campaign.

It's Cornell, Minnesota, Michigan and the Texas Aggies in the first four places this week, with only 375 points separating first place from fourth. Two major contests Saturday will eliminate one or more of these leaders, as Minnesota and Michigan clash at Minneapolis and Texas A. and M. plays Southern Methodist, which is strong enough to win 14th place on the week's list.

The more certain indication that the "championship" race is being narrowed is found, however, in the first place votes. The 178 experts who participated in the fifth weekly poll gave one or more points to 30 teams, but only seven were mentioned for first place.

Cornell received 119 of the 178 first-place votes. Minnesota drew 18, and was rated second by 82 experts. The Aggies received 14 firsts and Michigan and Tennessee, 11 each. Stanford received three and Boston College, two. On the point system, it was much closer with 1,560 for Cornell, 1,420 for Minnesota, 1,258 for Michigan and 1,185 for Texas A. and M.

That score makes it a cinch that the Minnesota-Michigan game will bring a flock of votes for the winner and send the loser down the list, the distance depending upon the size of the score. Northwestern, which lost a 13-12 decision to Minnesota last Saturday, skidded from eighth to tenth place.

The Aggies run into a tied but undefeated opponent in S. M. U., which collected 58 points in the voting. And the game looks a lot closer than those points show. For the Mustangs think they should have won, or at least tied, last year's game and are out to get square this week.

Stanford, sixth with 906 points, also encounters the kind of opposition that easily might disturb the rankings when it plays Washington. The Muskies, beaten only by Minnesota and Stanford's only rival for the Pacific Coast title and the Rose Bowl invitation, are rated tenth with 87 points.

Any of the other leaders will have to do a lot to keep pace with the winners in these contests. Cornell has only to beat one of the weakest Yale teams on record; Tennessee, which polled 929 points for fifth place, plays little Southwestern of Memphis, Tenn. Notre Dame, which dropped from second place to seventh after the Army game and received only 769 points, faces a good Navy outfit.

Boston College, eighth with 527 points, meets Boston University; Georgetown, ninth with 347 plays a sub-par Maryland team, and Northwestern, which received 316 points, plays its old rival, Illinois.

Others figuring in the voting this week were Nebraska and Duke, tied for 12th with 84 points; Pennsylvania, 23; Penn State, 17; Fordham, 16; Lafayette, 10; Santa Clara and Mississippi State, 9 each; Clemson, 8; Alabama, 5; Texas Tech, 4; Tulane, 3; Ohio State, Mississippi State, Utah and St. Mary's (Calif.) 2 each; Navy and Michigan State, 1 each.

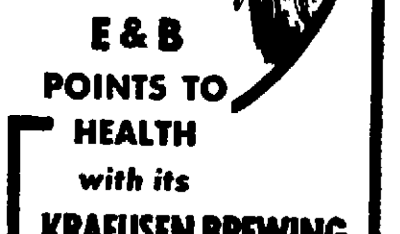

Pigskins Trimmed To Fit the Kids

SEATTLE — (AP) — Grammar school boys like to play football, but they have trouble getting their chubby fingers around the regulation size oval.

So the Seattle School Board, which has a workshop, decided to make use of the odds and ends of leather left over from repairing soccer balls, basketballs, etc.

Evolved was a football looking like an oversize lemon — two inches shorter and three inches less in circumference—and now the tots are getting an early start at football, instead of sticking to marbles.

THE WORLD IS LIKE THAT + +

CHAPTER XXX.

"You know my mother. The minute you're established there she'll take you entirely into her confidence, gossip about Janet, go to her card games and dinners, and go off to her place on the Rogue River in July. Nothing matters to my mother except that she's amused."

"I really do think it's—it's awful the way rich people live," Jocelyn said, conceding him this with a startled little laugh.

"You know you've never said you loved me, Jocelyn."

"I've loved you ever since you came over here that Sunday to ask me to come to Norma. Perhaps I loved you before that," her tender, shaken voice said out of the dark. "Only—only I can't believe it," Jocelyn added in a whisper, as if she spoke her thoughts aloud.

"Why not? I'm not offering you much. You've just said yourself that money doesn't buy much happiness. I'm offering you Norma, for she'll cling to you like an abalone once you—you belong to us. She's always going to be a problem. She'll marry, but that won't end it. Her mother'll always be a problem. In fact, you'll be a working housekeeper for the whole crowd of us," Philip said, "and you'll not get much out of it!"

"I'll get my wildest dream of all dreams out of it. I'll marry the one man in the world who has made me feel that——that I want to marry!"

"Who are you talking to?"

"You."

"And I've a name, I suppose?"

"Phil."

There was a long silence.

"I'm going to try," he presently said, "to make you the happiest woman in the world. I'll be so proud of you, that perhaps I'll be selfish. But I'm going to try. Just thinking about you as my wife, Jocelyn, has made all the world different to me in these last few weeks. It was Janet, I suppose," Philip went on, in a surprised ruminative tone, "that first made me realize what I was feeling. I had to see her in New York, in the bank. It was about Norma's affairs, of course, and we were merely civil to each other. But she said that my mother's letters had been full of the new governess, and asked if you were pretty. I said that you were the sort of woman in whom looks didn't matter. That you were handling Norma with so much intelligence and affection and imagination that she was an entirely changed girl. I suppose," the man concluded with a chuckle, "that that was what alarmed Janet. At all events the first thing she said to me last night when we went into my mother's room was that I was in love with you! She's evidently been thinking it over. Well, I had, too. I thought about it on the train, and I thought about it when I got home. And it seemed suddenly to smooth out everything, to be the perfect, the restful, the wonderful answer. And then I knew!"

"But—but can she get Norma away from you, if you marry again?" Jocelyn asked fearfully.

"Why should she? She's married twice since she left me."

"I know. But Norma wants to go with her now, and that may mean that she never wants to come back. They said you were going to join them."

Philip laughed, dropped his cheek to rest it against her hair again. "That was pure fiction," he said. "That was to scare you away."

"But surely they wouldn't think that if you wanted to you couldn't get in touch with me?"

"They might. Especially if my mother could persuade me to go with all of them to Honolulu on Saturday. That would have made a long gap. You see, darling, they didn't know that I'd asked you to marry me. They may have thought it was just a passing feeling."

"And you're sure it's not?"

"No, dear. I'll not change. You may."

"I'll not change. But if I am the person who separates you from your daughter?"

"Then you might be the person who gives me my son."

"I didn't think of that. I've not had time to think of anything. And oh, Phil, I won't dare tell my aunt or anyone about this tonight! They're nearly insane over Sissy's wedding plans as it is!" Jocelyn's voice had in it some of the notes of young delight and awe that made it sound like Sissy's own.

"As far as separating me from Norma goes," Philip presently said seriously, "her mother never can do that. Janet will take her to the islands, give her a royal time for a few days, and then forget her, and abandon her to Sandy. Poor kid! Janet will be dancing, drinking, racing about, gambling, and then there'll be talk of schools for Norma again, what on earth to do with Norma, and back she'll come, only too glad to get to Dad and Potsy!"

"Oh, I hope so!" the girl ejaculated fervently.

"This is Monday," he said. "They sail on Saturday. I don't want to marry you in any hole-in-the-corner way, Jocelyn. I want them to know it, I want the papers to have it, and I want whatever ceremony you and your people here think best. Of course we'll have this whole crowd here invited, and you'll decide how it's to be. I'll see you tomorrow—will you come over here and lunch with me tomorrow? We'll find a ring and—"

"Oh, Philip, we aren't really planning our wedding!"

"We really are."

They walked to his car and stood talking, and he took one more kiss and went on his way. Jocelyn walked back to the house in a dream of heaven. It could not be true, but it was true!

Jane met her in the hall. "Jocelyn," she said, "Mr. Kent Dunham's here. He got here about fifteen minutes ago, and he's in the library with Dad. He says he's got to see you!"

They had a favorite table hidden away among the arches of the big central dining room of a well-known hotel and here they sat talking, talking, talking on in an enchanting new intimacy that made every word thrilling, and every subject, shared by their two minds and hearts, of absorbing interest.

Jocelyn wore today a straw hat covered with poppies and wheat. Her brown linen suit was plain in line, the blouse tailored and severe, but the radiance of her face and the light in her eyes made her beauty so unusual that Philip wondered how she could be so serenely unconscious of watching and admiring glances.

"Everyone knows we're here today, Jocelyn."

"I should think everyone would. We've been right in this spot every day this week."

"Next week will be different."

"They really sail tomorrow, Phil? It'll be such a relief; I'll breathe so much easier when that's over!"

"They really do. At least I imagine they will. We'll send Norma some books, shall we? I've ordered flowers and candy through the office, but I'd like you to help me with the books."

"She came around to it, did she? She said she wouldn't go if Sandy did."

"She had to, poor kid, for very shame. I felt so sorry for her." Philip frowned, pushed away his plate. "Spazzolari's going to be there next month; did I tell you that? Yes; he goes down on the Pelham yacht; it seems. Poor Norma, that started her off again. I was down at my mother's for an hour last night, and we had it hot and heavy. I took down Norma's letter of credit and some other papers. Janet was there, very gay and confident, and putting on an act of great surprise that Norma didn't want to go. Sandy was sitting right among us, so naturally Norma couldn't say a word, but she'd telephoned me in a perfect fury—I told you that yesterday — that she wouldn't go if Sandy went. Janet's almost beside herself trying to keep the child amused—all the lesson books gone, of course, and they are already getting on each other's nerves. It's exactly what's gone on all through Norma's life, and we don't seem to find a way out. The understanding is now that if Janet has Norma until August—"

"Until August!"

"Yes, I know, it seems an awful long time. But then she's to be handed over to me, and I've about half a mind," Philip said, "to chuck law for six months and travel—you and I and the kid."

"Philip, what she would really like much better, what she really needs, is just to stay on here quietly, having her little Friday parties, going to subdeb things, making friends." Jocelyn said earnestly. "If you—if we had a place at Monterey, or Menlo, or one of the quieter places, and her friends could come to it, and there were tennis and golf and outdoor meals, that's what would save her."

"Well, perhaps you're right. She misses you. She asked me last night if you wouldn't go with them."

"And Sandy and her mother, too?"

"She seemed to think it might be arranged."

"Oh, but Phil, that would be worse and more of it!"

"That's what I told her. She said that she wouldn't go at all. But I believe she will. You see," the man went on, "Norma'll be eighteen next February. I believe it has occurred to her mother that Norma comes into her accumulated income then. That would settle Janet's debts, if she could borrow it—"

"Debts!"

"Oh, yes; she's deep in debt. Always."

"But didn't her father leave her—at the office the girls always said—"

WILLKIE MAKES PLEA FOR UNITY

Declares Preservation of Free America Most Sacred Cause.

As soon as the broadcast was over, the Willkie's drove to their Fifth avenue apartment. They arranged to vote at 9:15 a. m. at public school No. 6 on Madison avenue, only a few blocks from their residence. Neither made any other election day engagements, but will spend the evening listening to returns.

Mrs. Willkie will remain in the apartment, but Willkie will be with a few close associates in a suite at the Commodore. Four thousand "Willkie workers" have been invited to hear returns in the hotel ballroom.

The nominee's theater broadcast was his third since mid-afternoon Monday. In the first speech, he promised the women of America that he would not "send your husbands and sons and brothers to death on a European or Asiatic battlefield."

In an evening program, he called the greatest danger to democracy the possibility that "the citizens, who have the final authority, may become careless about it." Apathy, he asserted, "undermines liberty."

National unity was one of the three parts of a program which Willkie emphasized in more than 500 campaign talks in 34 states. The other parts were a strong defense program and "jobs for all."

His strategy, as explained by associates, was similar to that used just before the Philadelphia convention. He had been a late entrant in the party contest, but during the final few days he worked 18 to 20 hours, visiting state delegations and conferring with individuals, in an effort to win votes.

GARDEN CLUB

GALION — Speaker Monday night for the monthly meeting of the Galion Garden club was Mrs. Nellie Wade of Bellville. Her subject was "The Garden Ills." The meeting was held at the public library, members responding to roll call with "How Do You Bribe Your Birds?"

ciples of true Americanism and the Democratic way of life.

"To all who have labored to advance those principles by working in behalf of the Democratic candidates, I return heartfelt thanks."

With the assistance of news service teletypes, bringing returns from all over the country into his own home, the chief executive planned to keep his own tabulation tonight on the election trends.

He had devoted a large portion of the day before election to paying what he termed a "sentimental visit" to his "neighbors" in the Hudson valley region where he was born and spent his youth. He told those neighbors that he was visiting them for the last time "as a candidate for office."

The president closed his campaign without mentioning Wendell L. Willkie by name in a single major or minor address.

In the final speech of his campaign the president contrasted the peace and freedom of American life with that of people abroad, on whose homes "bombs of destruction may be dropping even as I speak to you."

"I think I speak the minds of all of you" he said, "when I say that we thank God that we live in the sunlight, in the starlight of peace—that we are not in war, and that we propose and expect to continue to live our lives in peace—under the peaceful light of heaven."

Double Golden Wedding Plans of Brothers Delayed.

PITTSBURGH— (U.P.) —Because of illness, the double 50th wedding anniversary of two brothers and their childhood sweethearts will be delayed this year.

The couples are Frank Mathias, 71, and his wife, Mrs. Mary Klien Mathias, 70, of Carnegie, Pa., and Casper Mathias, 75, and his wife, Mrs. Susan Kiel Mathias, 73, of Alliance, O.

Married here Nov. 4, 1890, in a double wedding ceremony, the two couples each year have joined in celebration of the unions.

It was agreed that the celebration this year will be held later.

fidavit of using the mails in an attempt to extort $3,000 from Joseph Ferrise, 332 West Sixth street, a Third street market merchant.

The extortion note, the affidavit states, threatened Ferrise and his family with bodily harm. It was mailed on March 10, 1939.

Climaxing an 18-month investigation, Letizia was arrested last Friday by police and federal agents.

Police Chief Meade K. Bates said the agents were called into the case after Ferrise had brought the blackmail note to him. The letter demanded that the money, all in $10 bills be placed on a grave in the Mansfield cemetery.

Police laid a trap but the suspect failed to call for the dummy package.

Republicans Fight for Majority In House Membership

CONGRESS VOTE RANKS SECOND TO PRESIDENCY

GOP Confident of Winning Legislative Strength at Washington.

(By United Press)

NEW YORK—Vigorous Republican efforts to win control of the house gave congressional contests second-ranking importance in today's national election.

Except for Maine's three Republican representatives, elected in September, all 435 seats in the house were before the voters.

Republican leaders, from house minority Leader Joseph W. Martin, jr., down, expressed confidence that their candidates would win a majority of the races and thus control half the legislative branch of the government, regardless of the outcome of the presidential contest.

Democratic leaders, who publicly claim they will increase their present majority, concede privately they may suffer a loss in membership but maintain it will not be large. They could lose 41 seats and still have a majority of one. Some Democrats predict the net loss will be no greater than 10.

The present division is 259 Democrats, 167 Republicans, with four seats divided among three minority parties. There are five vacancies.

Never has the nation elected a chief executive of one political faith and a house majority of another.

Republicans centered special effort on the house, arguing that even those who vote for a Democratic president should vote for a Republican house to provide a "check" on the executive. House control is especially important, they have pointed out, because the lower chamber originates appropriations and tax bills.

The Democrats entered the election with a minimum strength of 158 to 175 seats in the solid south and traditionally Democratic northern city districts.

Democrats hope to pick up seats at the expense of Republican incumbents in Connecticut, Wisconsin, New Jersey, Ohio and Pennsylvania. Republicans expect to take Democratic seats in California, Colorado, Illinois, Indiana, Pennsylvania, and even in the usually Democratic state of Maryland, where Walter Johnson, "Big Train" of baseball is running against Democrat William D. Byron, incumbent, in the Sixth district.

Six-Year-Sleep Ends In Death For Akron Girl

AKRON—(AP)—Death last night ended seven-year-old Dorothy June Russell's six-year sleep.

When she was less than a year old she was stricken with whooping cough, followed by encephalitis or "sleeping sickness," she fell into a coma from which she never recovered.

At first, fed with a spoon she grew normally. Then, losing weight, she was placed in a hospital here Thursday in a vain attempt to feed her artificially.

She was the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Samuel N. Russell of nearby Wadsworth.

DEATH CLAIMS STELLA TENNIS

Butler Township Woman Dies: Funeral Thursday.

Mrs. Stella M. Tennis, 57, died Monday night at her home in Butler township after an illness of several months.

Surviving are her husband, Roy; a son, Edward, also of Butler township, a daughter, Blanche, at home; a sister, Mrs. Edith Stevens, Weller township, and three grandchildren.

Mrs. Tennis was a member of the Adario Methodist church and the Women's Society of Christian Service.

Funeral services will be held at 2 p. m. Thursday at the Adario church with Rev. Theodore K. McDonald officiating. Burial will be in Pleasant Valley cemetery.

NYA Starts Work on Airport Improvement

WORKMEN BEGIN PARK PROJECT CONSTRUCTION

Job To Cost $8,054, First Step In Program Drawn For Extensive Improvements.

Work was under way at the municipal airport today on the development of a state roadside park.

Construction was started yesterday by 15 national Youth administration youths under supervision of the state highway department.

The project involves the development of nearly four acres along the route 13 frontage of the port near the north end of the field.

Total cost of the development has been figured at $8,054, of which the highway department will provide $4,364 for materials and supervision, the balance of the cost being furnished by the government agency for labor.

The project is set up to provide 50 Richland county youths between the ages of 18 and 25 with employment for a period of four months. NYA officials, however, have said that the force may be doubled to complete the work before winter.

Development includes landscaping and grading a parking lot for 200 automobiles, construction of three large shelters with picnic tables, four brick fireplaces, two sanitary units, guard rail and a well shelter.

In addition, there will be nearly 100 shrub type trees planted, larger trees being of the type that would create a hazard to planes landing on the port.

The improvement is the first to be made at the field since 1928. At that time several miles of drainage tile was laid, but no actual work has since been made to improve landing facilities.

Hard surfaced runways needed for year around flying at the port hinge on the voters' approval today of a one-mill levy.

GET BALLOTS

C. of C. Membership To Make Director Nominations.

Ballots were being prepared today for the membership of the Chamber of Commerce which will ask them to place in nomination the names of 12 members to fill vacancies in the board of directors.

John G. Routzon, secretary-manager, said the ballots would be sent to the membership probably the latter part of this week. Date for closing the nominations has not yet been set.

The 24 members receiving the most votes will be nominated and will probably be balloted on within the next two weeks. The terms of 12 members expire this year.

Directors are chosen for a two-year term.

Members retiring from the board this year but who are eligible for re-election are H. G. Balyeat, W. A. Bowers, J. B. Conard, P. M. Eliot, R. G. Fensch, M. W. Hieber, J. M. Hill, C. H. Huston, W. C. Mead, L. J. Ott, W. A. Springer, D. P. Smith.

Other board members whose terms do not expire until 1941 are H. W. Arlin, G. D. Draffan, J. S. Hattery, C. H. Henkel, R. E. Hutchison, O. C. McCormick, R. C. Remy, A. C. Rhoads, G. W. Stephens, C. L. VanDerau.

FEIDLER TALKS TO HOBBY CLUB

Henry Feidler, a well-known Mansfield stamp authority, talked to 22 members of the Buckeye Hobby club at the Y. M. C. A. last night on "Stamps and Foreign Countries," at their regular monthly session.

Officers for the coming year were also placed before the members by the nominating committee. They were Paul Harter, president; Mrs. V. D. Coe, vice president; Kathryn Pfeifer, secretary; and Harold Hill, treasurer.

Nominations will be made from the floor at the next meeting in December, when the election of officers will take place.

There may be a lot of reasons why collectors come to collect things, but V. H. Oberlander, vocational director of the Mansfield schools, came up yesterday with the prize reason. For years Oberlander has been collecting match covers from every state and nation in the hemisphere, until nearly every available space in his office has been taken up with the covers. Last week, however, he found a vacant spot on the top of a cabinet on which rested two clocks, so Oberlander decided to collect clocks. This week he had at least nine of the timepieces resting on the cabinet.

The picture of the old Wiler house that was shown in Sunday's News-Journal recalled to Howard Zerbe, water department employe, today that the name was Weiler instead of Wiler. Zerbe says a diary owned by a relative in the family formerly belonged to the painter who lettered the sign back in the early 20's. Written in German, Zerbe says, the writer explains that the E was left out of the name because he didn't have enough paint for the entire name and it would have taken him about three days to get the extra liquid for he would have had to go to Mt. Vernon for the supply.

COUNCIL MEETS

City Fathers Meet Tonight For Short Session.

With the lightest docket in recent months, city council is expected to wind up it's business in jig time tonight in order to give the legislators opportunity to watch the election returns.

Major measure to come up is an ordinance revising the parking laws to create uniform one-hour periods in zones already designated for the installation of parking meters.

Although there are several pieces of legislation calling for street improvements, councilmen expressed the opinion today that the measures would not be acted upon tonight.

It was understood that most of the business would be sidetracked and would be acted upon at a special session, probably within the next week.

PATROL CHECKS 41 ACCIDENTS

Monthly Report Shows Speed, Drunken Driving Caused Most Mishaps.

A total of 41 accidents were investigated and 65 arrests were made by highway patrolmen in the Richland county area during October, according to a report issued today by Corp. C. F. Strayer, officer in charge of the Mansfield station.

According to the report, 17 of the 41 accidents resulted in injuries to 36 persons, while property damage was estimated at $10,385 for the month.

The report also revealed that Saturday and Sunday were the two most dangerous days to travel during the month. Of the 41 accidents, 12 occurred on Saturdays and 11 on Sundays. A total of 17 persons were injured on Saturdays and seven on Sundays.

Worst routes to travel in area, the report stated, were Route 30, Route 39, and Route 42. Twelve accidents were investigated on Route 30, six on Route 39, and five on Route 42.

Most dangerous times to travel were 3 p. m., 7 p. m., and 11 p. m., with four accidents occuring during each of these hours, Strayer said.

Chief causes of accidents during the period were speed in excess of the legal limits, drunken driving, pedestrians, defective brakes, and bad lights. Speed accounted for 12 accidents; drunken drivers and pedestrians, four; and defective brakes and bad lights, five.

Out of the 65 arrests made by patrolmen in October, 27 were for speeding, 25 for unsafe driving, four for drunken driving, and the remainder for miscellaneous violations.

2 SHOPLIFTERS SENT TO JAIL

Get Terms of 30 Days for Thefts In Stores.

Two accused shoplifters, both charged with petit larceny, pleaded guilty in municipal court this morning and each was sentenced to 30 days in the county jail.

Walter E. Maloney, Cincinnati, was charged with the theft of a $21 gun by J. H. Blahnik, Manager of Montgomery Ward company, and Robert Goede, transient, was accused of the theft of 50 cents worth of face powder at Neuser's store on North Main street. The affidavit was signed by Irving Halser, the manager.

ELECTION DISPUTE

CLEVELAND—(AP)—An election argument began at a steel mill here yesterday and ended in a hospital with Ben Malloy, 37 suffering a bullet wound in the thigh and Charles Wilson, 28, receiving five stitches to close a gash in his mouth, police reported.

NEW HAMPSHIRE VILLAGE FIRST TO VOTE; GIVES WILLKIE LEAD

SHARON, N. H.—(INS)—This little New Hampshire village was the first in the nation to cast its vote in the presidential election today and as usual it was heavily Republican.

The 28 qualified voters began casting their ballots at exactly one minute past midnight in an ancient Colonial red brick schoolhouse lighted by candles and kerosene lamps at exactly 12:12 a. m. Today the vote was announced. Including three absentee ballots, it was 24 for Wendell L. Willkie and seven for President Roosevelt.

In 1936, Sharon went Republican 13 to 3 for Alfred M. Landon over President Roosevelt and in 1932 it was 11 for Herbert Hoover to only one for Mr. Roosevelt.

By scooping the nation with its vote, Sharon stole a march on New Ashford and Mt. Washington in the Berkshire hills of Massachusetts who in the past have held that honor. New Hampshire election laws, permitting balloting as soon as the stroke of midnight has passed, make such feats as Sharon's possible.

Nestled in a pine-covered hill on Temple mountain, Sharon has no police of its own and a state trooper stood guard at the 175-year-old schoolhouse. Perfert order was preserved by the voters. The 12 women and 16 men formed two lines at the polling place and when Town Moderator George C. Keeler lifted his arm to signalize the legal beginning of Tuesday, the voters entered the seven polling booths and marked their ballots.

The place of honor at the head of the line and the distinction of voting first was reserved for Sharon's oldest resident, Charles N. Wilson. Despite his advanced age, Wilson walked more than two miles to the schoolhouse to vote after finishing his farm tasks.

The distinction of voting second was given to Herbert Young, just turned 21 and Sharon's youngest voter.

Gazing down on the typical New England assembly exercising one of America's most sacred duties were the brooding eyes of Abraham Lincoln from a picture above the polling booths. The school has been closed the past 20 years and is opened for public use only on such important occasions as electing a president.

Keeler used a stop watch to time the dramatic proceedings. As the hands of the watch reached 12, he announced: "We shall now proceed to vote." After Wilson and Young voted the others quickly concluded the task. Keeler publicly announced the votes as the ballots were counted and the results were marked on the blackboard for all the spectators to see.

A typical New England boiled dinner, served by the Monadnock Region association, preceded the midnight voting.

Inmates, Women Headed For Marysville Get 'Bath.'

Nine men were behind the walls of the Ohio State reformatory and four women were in Marysville today following a "steam bath" they turned on themselves yesterday afternoon while being transported in a truck from Cleveland.

As the truck neared Ashland the prisoners tore loose heating pipes and the vehicle was a mass of steam when it arrived in the city. Apparently none the worse for their experience, the prisoners were lodged in the Ashland county jail until the truck was repaired.

Ashland county sheriff and a deputy escorted the prisoners to Mansfield.

Laff-a-Day

"That's a nice lunch. It's too bad we aren't businessmen, isn't it?"

The Voice of BROADWAY

—By DOROTHY KILGALLEN

Miss Midnight's Diary.

Dear Diary: There seemed to be three topics of conversation around Broadway last week—"Panama Hattie," W--lk--e vs. R--s-v-lt, and "what's your conscription number?" "Panama Hattie's $8.80 opening was the scene of enough ermine to blanket Mt. Rainier, and enough celebrities to fill the IRT express, which is what the lobby resembled between acts.

All the old standbys were there—Major Bowes and Sophie Tucker and Herbert Bayard Swope and Willie Moore, who dropped in between menus at his restaurant next door, apparently, for he stood at the side of the theater to watch the show and disappeared from time to time.

The only near-incident of the occasion took place in the second row, center, where Miss Hope Hampton and Miss Sonja Henie were sitting side by side. Miss Hampton and Miss Henie (whose blonde heads, from the back, look exceedingly twin-like) were both wearing dresses with voluminous tulle skirts. Every time Miss Henie moved, she got tangled up in Miss Hampton's skirts; every time Miss Hampton stirred, she got mixed up in Miss Henie's gown.

Both ladies just smiled at each other each time this diaphanous tangle occurred, but theatergoers in nearby seats were agog wondering if by any chance Miss Henie might leave her seat wearing Miss Hampton's dress, and Miss Hampton leave wearing Miss Henie's.

Afterwards the Copacabana opened, way up in the 60's and it proved to be a nice room although I do not think it will ever take the place of baseball or even El Morocco. It is a hybid combination of Latin and cafe society, and two of the nicest things that can be said about it are that the dance floor is a good size and that it is presided over by Jack Entrater, who used to be at the Stork club.

More interesting than the floor show (which featured a bevy of very beautiful babes) were the adventures of various glamor girls who came in with the wind and the rain in their hair and went out looking for a place where they powder their noses.

Several dozen such maidens came back after intervals of from 20 minutes to two and a half hours with long tales about where they had been, but I would like simply to recount the adventures of beautiful Miss Brenda Joyce, the blonde starlet, whose experience was typical.

Miss Joyce, shortly after she entered the Copacabana, detected a slight shine on her otherwise perfect nose, and excused herself to go to the Powder Room. In chronological order, this is what happened:

1—Miss Joyce ascended a flight of curving stairs from the main room to the bar, and was directed into the nether regions, reached by a door to the left of the bar.

2—She found herself in a hall with no signposts. All road markers evidently had been removed to confuse the enemy.

3—She went into the kitchen, looked briefly at the waiters and cooks, none of whom could help direct her, and backed into the hall again.

4—She met a little man in overalls who was carrying a piece of board covered with paint samples, but he did not know the way to the Powder Room.

5—She opened another door and found another little man sitting inside with a broom.

6—She went through an archway and came upon a second kitchen, or perhaps it was the butler's pantry.

7—Time passed. Brenda's escort, who had been sitting wondering if he would ever set eyes on her again, began wandering through the haze looking for her. It was a sort of "Chloe!" "Chloe!" set-up.

8—Brenda decided to give up and retrace her steps. On what she thought was her way back to the main room, she came upon a set of satin curtains. And passing through them, like Alice through the Looking Glass, Brenda arrived, after her long journey, in the Powder Room. There she found all the other little girls who had disappeared ahead of her. They were sitting hunched at little mirrors, lighting matches so they could see their faces.

When Brenda came out, her nose was Simply Beautiful.

Out on the dance floor Liz Whitney, in a black dinner dress and diamonds, was doing a slight rumba with Ted McCreary, and among those watching were Billy Rose and Eleanor Holm, who could hardly hold up her head, she had so many orchids on it.

Mrs. "Ruby" Schinasi, who is best known as the mother of the former Mrs. Wayne Morris, came in dripping with diamonds and sat with a small party of friends. Just to prove that democracy is still working, Mrs. Schinasi had at her table: (a) male milliner; (b), a Countess; a chorus boy from "Too Many Girls."

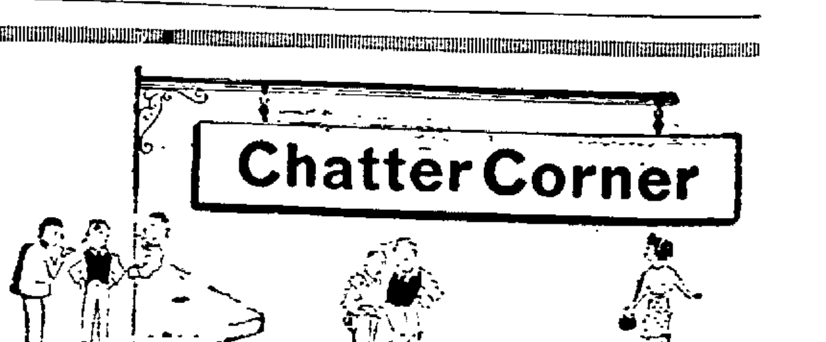

* * *

Liz Whitney and Tex got Tired of It All around two and went over to El Morocco, where a now-and-then beau of Mrs. Whitney's, Bruce Cabot, was waltzing with Miss Diana Barrymore. Miss Barrymore wore a cream-colored gown almost entirely covered with black lace, and carried in her hand a single red rose.

When she and Mr. Cabot left the dance floor they stopped to chat with Gloria Baker Topping, who looked prim in a black long-sleeved dinner dress and was with Maxie Baer, the pugilist, who looked prim in a dinner jacket.

Over at the Ruban Bleu Countess Merry Fahrney Cassini was with her Baron Hubert von Pantz, and the two held eyes all the time Vera Sanoff sang her sad songs. Brenda Frazier was "Shipwrecked" again, occupying the same table she always gets, and which host Herbert Jacoby says he will some day christen the "Brenda Corner."

A courier burst in announcing that Buddy DeSylva was on his way over with his wife and that it was her birthday. Benny Baker came with them, prepared for the occasion. He offered a little song entitled "DeSylva Treads Among the Gold."

MANSFIELDERS SET RECORD IN EARLY VOTING

Nearly All of City's 20,000 Registered Voters Defying Rain To Cast Ballots.

usual competition of small communities for the distinction of recording their vote first in the whole nation.

The 1940 honor went to little Sharon, N. H., which tabulated its total of 31 votes at 12 minutes after midnight (EST). Willkie, the Republican nominee, received 24 of them, to 7 for his Democratic rival.

The vote compared with the hamlet's 1932 score of 11 for Hoover and 1 for Roosevelt, and the 1936 record of 13 for Landon and 3 for Roosevelt.

Thus the start in the great contest in which an American electorate will also express—for the first time in history—its opinion on the question argued pro and con throughout 1940's hectic campaign:

Should a chief executive be given a third term in the White House?

The responsibility of registering presidential choices was the first of many confronting voters. In addition, there were the 35 seats in the U. S. senate and the 432 seats in the house of representatives to be filled. Thirty-three states had gubernatorial races, and there were numerous state, county and local contests on many of the ballots. The number of national and state offices at issue alone totalled 6,794.

Both Mr. Roosevelt and Willkie in final messages to the electorate urged all qualified voters to exercise the right and duty of citizens by casting their ballots. Lesser party figures seconded this appeal.

While these messages stressed the duty of citizenship, and as such could be considered non-political, the bi-partisan siege for votes continued "all out" during election eve and carried over past midnight into election day morning hours.

Only then did the campaign end, and voters—all reduced to the same individual level by the common denominator of the ballot—had their opportunity to speak. Assailed for weeks by partisan oratory, exhorted by billboards, and beset by all kinds of electioneering literature, the voter had the last say in the privacy of his local polling booth.

Neither President Roosevelt nor Willkie abandoned active campaigning on election eve.

The Democratic candidate, confining himself to a motor tour of his Hudson valley neighbors in New York, told these neighbors in impromptu talks that he was making his last appearance among them "as a candidate for office."

In the evening from his Hyde Park home he spoke to the nation during a two hour radio broadcast arranged by the Democratic national committee, and it was then he urged voters to vote.

The right of the people to select their own officers of government, he said, gave them "the most powerful safeguard of our democracy." He reminded the country that it was living in "the sun light and star light of peace."

"After the ballots are counted," he declared, "the United States of America will still be united."

Willkie, the Republican standard bearer, took to the air waves three times during the day for his closing words to the country.

Addressing himself to women voters in a mid-afternoon broadcast, Willkie promised "not to send your husbands and sons and brothers to death on a European or Asiatic battlefield."

Again at a microphone in mid-evening, he told voters it was their "sacred duty" to vote and asked that none let bad weather hinder them. "The issue," he said, "may depend upon whether or not you are willing to make a trip through rain or snow to the polling place." He also fired a salvo at the third term and enumerated once more some of the reasons why he opposed the New Deal.

In his concluding address, delivered after midnight, he called for a Republican victory at the polls, saying "we must win!" Referring to the campaign's close, he declared, "this is not the end of our crusade. It is but the beginning."

The two running mates on the major party tickets added their final words to those of the presidential nominee.

Henry A. Wallace, Democratic vice presidential nominee who spoke on the same radio program as Mr. Roosevelt, praised the administration's farm program as a means of helping the nation preserve peace.

"Peace can be maintained only by preparedness on all fronts," he said, talking from Washington, "and we are gratified that on the agricultural front no such breakdown as that of eight years ago is occurring this year."

Senator McNary of Oregon, Republican vice presidential candidate wound up his campaign at Salem in his home state with a speech charging that the New Deal was "taking deeper and deeper refuge in paternalism and statism."

Terming the initial New Deal strategy one of "retreat," he said "we must guard against a rout in the next four years; a rout in which might be lost our personal liberties, our substance and our power to make future decisions."

John L. Lewis, CIO chairman who previously announced for Willkie, appealed again for the Republican nominee's triumph, asserting once more "that the re-election of President Roosevelt will result in the nation's involvement in war."

Secretary of State Hull, who introduced Mr. Roosevelt for his last message to voters, urged his chief's return to office. "The nation needs (his) continued leadership," Hull declared, in "the critical days and months which lie ahead."

Former Gov. Alfred E. Smith of New York coupled his last call for Willkie's election with the statement that "given four years more, the third term candidate will lead you over the hills to the poorhouse and government handout."

Senator Clark (D., Mo.), opponent of many administration policies, notably in foreign affairs, said "I warn the multitude of Americans who share my opposition to getting us into war that they have nothing to hope for from Wendell Willkie." He said he would have voted for Willkie if he believed the country would be less likely to be lured into war. "Such," he commented, "is very far from being the case."

Among other last rounds fired on the political front:

Senator Johnson (R., Calif.)—"I am convinced that a vote for Wendell Willkie means a vote for real defense without involvement in Europe's inferno of war."

Alexander Wollcott—"We have in the White House a man, who, like Winston Churchill, can put into words what is in all our hearts—our faith, our hope and our charity."

Republican Chairman Martin—"The battle of America is almost won."

Mayor F. H. LaGuardia (at New York rally)—"The campaign is over. This is a victory meeting for the re-election of President Roosevelt."

John T. Flynn, author and economist—"Franklin D. Roosevelt will take us into this war."

Candidates End County Drives

Richland county Democrats and Republicans wound up their campaign drives last night and today were engaged in getting out voters of their respective parties.

In spite of rain which greeted early voters in their march to the polls this morning, indications were that a record-breaking total would be turned in today.

As skies cleared about noon, workers of both parties intensified their "taxi" service, by telephoning and furnishing automobiles to get the voters to their precinct polling places.

Leaders of both political organizations predicted victory but neither would give any indication of what edge was expected. Several, however, predicted that the outcome of the state and national contests in the county would be close.

At 6:30 p. m. when the polls close, candidates will be flocking to the election board in the courthouse to rest their heels and await returns after one of the most heated campaigns in recent years.

The foreign policy and local health conditions were subjects of talks given last night at the regular meeting of the League of Women Voters which was held at the Chamber of Commerce room.

Mrs. Osborne Meese told of the technics of the foreign policy rather than dealing with the policy itself. She told how foreign affairs of the United States are handled by a staff of competent men in foreign cities and centered in the state department in Washington, with the secretary of state answering only to the president.

Mrs. J. C. Gorman gave a comprehensive talk on the functioning of city and county health boards and health conditions in this vicinity.

It was decided that the executive board should appoint a delegate to attend the state conference of the Ohio League which will be held in Columbus Nov. 27, and at which time next year's legislative program will be discussed. The next regular meeting of the Mansfield League will be held Dec. 2 at the Chamber of Commerce.

Greeks Say 34,000 Italian Troops Are Trapped In Koritza Region.

munication lines, columns of troops and motor cars, barracks and defense works."

Greece's high command said Greek warplanes bombed and machine-gunned Italian tanks and troop concentrations, with a loss of only one Greek plane against five Italian planes shot down.

In the unceasing aerial siege of Britain, Nazi warplanes "flying in continuous waves over the British capital, were said by the German high command to have dumped more than 1,500 bombs on London in the overnight assault.

Other German raiders attacked Edinburgh, Liverpool and Coventry, while British RAF bombers once again pounded the German-held "invasion ports" of Ostend, Boulogne and Le Havre.

At daybreak, the Germans returned in force, precipitating a series of violent clashes high over the southeast English coast. London underwent two brief air-raid alarms before noon, but no bombs fell in the city, and the German formations were reported turned back.

Dispatches from the Greek battlefront said the 4,000 Italian troops cut off back of the line were sent there to sever Greek communications, and received supplies dropped by Fascist fliers. Some of the supplies and an undisclosed number of the Italians were captured, and the surrender of the rest was said to be imminent.

"Lone wolf" attacks by Nazi raiders last night sent Londoners back to shelters after 24 hours of respite from bombings.

The renewed overnight attack extended over England, Scotland and Wales. A British communique said the raids were "widespread and on a fairly heavy scale," but caused few casualties and no great damage.

Meanwhile, the Royal Air Force, also hampered by continued adverse weather, was reported to have struck again at the German-held ports along the coast of France and German airdromes in the occupied area of France.

Interest abroad in the United States presidential election centered mostly in England, where the British public has followed the campaign so closely that the BBC scheduled special broadcasts of the returns.

Newspaper editorials, however, reminded readers that both presidential candidates pledged increasing aid to Britain.

In the Spanish press, editorial comment asserted that the Axis countries had lost interest because of the anti-Axis similarity of the programs of President Roosevelt and Wendell L. Willkie.

British Extend War On Italy

LONDON—(U.P.)— Prime Minister Winston Churchill said in the House of Commons today that "we already have established a naval and air base on Crete which will enable us to extend the activity of the navy and air force."

Reviewing the war, Churchill said the government was making preparations to deal with possible continuation of hostilities through 1943 and 1944.

Amid roars of approval the prime minister said that the bombing of military objectives in southern Italy would continue on an ever-growing scale.

After references to air raids already made on Italy, Churchill added:

"Other forces in movement are designed to help to the utmost of our capacity."

Such help, it was presumed, referred to British aid to Greece.

Churchill said that Britain had sent men and arms to Egypt to the limits of her shipping capacity.

"Scores of thousands of troops have left this island or other parts of the empire for Egypt month after month," he said.

Turko-German Scene Watched

LONDON—(INS)—Anticipating a German ultimatum demanding territorial concessions from Turkey in the near future, informed British quarters kept a close watch today on Turko-German developments.

Such an ultimatum, these circles said, might be issued with these purposes:

1—To divert attention from Italian set-backs in the campaign against Greece.

2—To "freeze" British effectives and prevent Britain and Greece from exerting full pressure against Italy.

3—To launch a first step in a German "drang nach osten"—(drive to the east).

British authorities commented frankly that Turkish mobilization and dispatch of troops into Turkish Thrace formed the only insurance against a German-Bulgarian surprise thrust through Thrace.

One dispatch from Istanbul said German troops, traveling through the nightly blackouts in Rumania, are moving toward the Bulgarian frontier.

AN INDEPENDENT NEWSPAPER

MANSFIELD OHIO. TUESDAY, NOVEMBER 5, 1940.

Within another day or two those stirred up air waves may be expected to settle down to normalcy.

Scientists say this planet is two and one-half billion years old—so it will probably go on for a while longer, regardless of the election outcome.

Some of the more violent partisans will probably be much surprised when they awaken tomorrow and find things looking much the same—regardless of who is elected.

Let Partisan Bitterness End

AS THIS reaches the reader only a few hours remain for balloting in what will take place among the most bitterly contested national elections in United States history.

If anyone who is reading this editorial has not yet voted it is urged that everything else be put aside immediately and the trip made to your precinct polling place to vote. By that act you will perform a duty and exercise a privilege of citizenship, the importance of which cannot be overestimated.

But after the polls have closed, while ballots are being counted and the outcome awaited—that will be a good time to start thinking about the future and the great need for national unity, regardless of who is chosen president.

It is essential to realize that while sincere political differences may exist at all times, and flash violently during campaigns, minority acceptance of majority decisions in free elections is a necessary part of maintaining orderly processes of government in a democracy, where all adult citizens, men and women, are accorded the right to vote as they choose.

It should also be realized, however, that Americanism stands above all partisan considerations and that domestic peace is the first requisite to national security and progress.

Recent weeks have witnessed an unleashing of violent partisan forces which might easily leave wounds that would be long in healing. This should not be so. Whoever wins in today's election should be cheerfully accepted as the majority's choice and the nation should not be required to undergo any further partisan strife—at least until this country and the Western Hemisphere are assured of greater security than exists at present.

'Personal Liberty' Out of Bounds

ONE of the points at which the fine ideals of "equality" and "personal liberty" collide head-on with the practical problems of human subnormalities is brought forcefully to public notice by such acts of vandalism as have recently been committed in Mansfield.

Most recent of these manifestations of low mentality was the damage done to Mansfield's fine new Johnny Appleseed junior high school over the week-end, when stones and bottles were thrown through windows and considerable damage done to the interior of classrooms.

When it is remembered that this new junior high school represents an investment of around $400,000 of public money and has been considered an advance step in this city's public school system, it becomes evident that such malicious destruction cannot continue to be dismissed as mischievous "pranks" or punished by no more than a mild rebuke.

Under such a system of excessive leniency it is understandable that the type of persons, juveniles and adults, who incline to property destruction or other law violations are encouraged to feel that there is little likelihood of being "caught" and that, if apprehended, they will most likely be punished to no greater extent than being required to offer an "apology" and, possibly, listen to a lecture.

It would also appear, in a case of this kind, that diligent police work—of which the Mansfield department is capable when put to the test—would be effective in rounding up the guilty parties associated with the Johnny Appleseed school episode. And the offense is sufficiently serious to justify more than a "Naughty, naughty" penalty.

Old Prophecies Revived

VARIOUS old prophecies have been coming to light in these troublous times, particularly the famous verses of the French seer Nostradamus who wrote several centuries ago. It may be left to historians, psychologists and puzzle-solvers to determine whether those verses, like the sacred "Sibylline Leaves" of ancient Rome, are really pre-views of history or just meaningless words.

More interesting to Americans is a statement made by our own poet-philosopher Emerson nearly 100 years ago, which seems to have been a notable bit of insight and foresight about the British people.

"They are capable of a sublime resolution," he wrote in one of his Essays. "And if hereafter the war of races, often predicted, and making itself a war of opinions also (a question of despotism and liberty coming from Eastern Europe), should menace the English civilization, these sea kings may take once again to their floating castles and find a new home and a second millennium of power in their colonies."

There have been suggestions of that very thing lately, to meet the situation which Emerson foresaw.

Trade Trick That Failed

THE NAZIS did Uncle Sam a favor, unwittingly, when they pledged themselves to deliver all those orders of German goods to South American countries last month. To put it mildly, they over-extended themselves. They seem to have really thought they would have Britain conquered and the British fleet swept from the sea before October. The result is a black eye for Hitler and for the foreign trade system that the Nazis have built up so carefully.

In some cases these orders were filled with goods bought by the Nazis in the United States and delivered to the Latin-American market with German labels. But the deception was usually obvious. The net result has been a greater demand for American goods in Central and South America and more confidence in the United States.

Santa Claus Mechanized

EVEN Santa is going mechanical, reports a business observer at a national metal exposition. "Christmas," he says, "will bring an army of mechanized Santa Clauses, all of them equipped to carry on conversations on almost any phase of the holiday gift subject. They are prepared to shake hands with a prospective customer—or pat him on the head, if that seems suitable—then talk to him in words supplied by more or less remote control."

There is a man behind the screen who does the actual talking. But a clever manipulator can make the mechanical Santa seem very human.

Chance to Tell 'Em

—By ELSIE ROBINSON

I'M STRONG for these radio quizzes and public forums. Not just because they're a lot of fun but because they're rendering Top Service to America in general.

They're giving Plain People a public chance to think and talk.

And they're making the Master Minds realize that they've no monopoly on brain power.

We've always had plenty of talent lying around loose in these United States. But we've made a mistake of thinking it always wears an Oxford accent or drives a sixteen-cylinder car. Which has a mighty deteriorating effect on any democracy.

As a matter of fact, the smartest bundle often comes in the plainest package. And the stevedore, farmer and auto mechanic, notions clerk, stenog and busy housewife usually have as straight dope on our current problems as a whole campus of college professors. And can say it in a lot less words. Only few appreciated that fact until the newspaper columns came along and gave them a chance to prove it.

For Mr. and Mrs. Jones know their America as no cloistered genius can ever know it. And they don't learn it off a page. They learn it sweating behind a plough, banging the keys, bending over a sink, trying to figure how in heck they can make the rent or see the Kid through High School. Which, as a test of hoss sense, has all the I. Q. tests wiped off the boards.

And I should know. For during the 20 years I've been writing this column, I've dug its makings out of letters from those same Joneses. Letters embracing every topic under the sun, simply worded but chockful of salty philosophy, sound judgment and hot tips on this human race.

Bracing stuff, those letters, and never so badly needed as in these mad and muddled times. Which is why I'm writing this. I want to share those discussions with you—have you meet the writers, be one of them yourself. So here comes a free-for-all invitation.

HAVE YOU AN IDEA TO PUT OVER . . . A YELP TO REGISTER . . . A CONDITION TO CRITICIZE? THEN STEP RIGHT UP AND TELL 'EM. AMERICA NEEDS THEM—AND YOU.

Obviously, certain subjects are not our dish. Partisan politics . . . racial feuds . . . religious conflicts . . . these are taboo. But outside of these the sky's the limit. So grab that pen and turn loose. Have a heart and prune the wordage. Address the letter to me, in care of King Features Syndicate, Inc., 235 E. 45th Street, New York City. And be sure to write "LISTEN WORLD SUGGESTIONS" on the envelope and give your full name and address. We won't print your name if you prefer not.

Low Blood Pressure Cause for Thanks.

—By DR. CLENDENING

WHENEVER I publish an article on high blood pressure I get a number of letters from readers who want to know what to do about low blood pressure.

I have always answered that the best thing to do is to get down on your knees and give thanks that you have it. A recent article by Dr. Samuel C. Robinson gives some support to my long expressed views.

Most of my correspondents found they had low blood pressure accidentally. They were not sick, had no uncomfortable symptoms, but on a life insurance examination or school physical examination, or preliminary to a job, it was found.

Long ago the symptoms of low blood pressure were put down as occurring in a person who lacked stamina, tired easily, complained of cold extremities, and showed an inability to do prolonged mental or physical work.

All Nonsense.

This, according to Dr. Robinson, is all nonsense. Low blood pressure is not a disease, it produces no syndrome. It is by no means a rare condition. In a study of over 10,000 persons, a pressure under 110 (normal 120) was found in 25 per cent. The percentage is higher in those under 20 years of age and much higher in women of that age (56 per cent). People over 70, however, generally have a low blood pressure because it contributed to their longevity.

The individual with low blood pressure tends to be underweight. But such symptoms as lack of stamina, easy fatiguability, headache and dizziness do not go with low blood pressure necessarily at all. In fact, they are more likely to go with high blood pressure.

Can the person with low blood pressure be an active individual and undergo the rugged issues of life? Dr. Hines answers this by giving some case histories. Example:

A 32-year-old man, 69 inches tall and weighs 150 pounds. He is a teacher of physical education and a coach of athletics; he conducts three daily calisthenic classes, demonstrates with his class on parallel bars, tumbling and house work, and plays baseball and tennis. He feels well and has no complaints. His blood pressure is 98 systolic, 58 diastolic.

Presages Long Life.

Low blood pressure certainly presages a long life and an active old age. Among many aboriginal people, universal low blood pressure is the rule.

If any individual has any symptoms from his low blood pressure, the sovereign remedy is exercise. Dr. Hines recites the case of a man who has been known to have low blood pressure for thirty-five years since 1905, when it was accidentally discovered on a college entrance examination.

He occasionally complained of a "dogs" feeling, but during the past fifteen years he has worked hard on his own amateur farm, and has found that severe physical work dissipates his feelings and makes him more fit for mental exertion.

Port Clinton, Ottawa county seat, is one of the most interesting places in the state, historically speaking.

A stone monument on route 2, at the edge of town, marks the end of Harrison's trail in the war of 1812. It was at this point that the army took passage on board Commodore Perry's fleet, crossed into Canada and defeated the British and Indians under General Proctor and Tecumseh.

The site of old Fort Sandouski is commemorated by a monument at the south end of Fulton street.

Located in a great fruit belt, Port Clinton is the largest peach distributing center in the state.

Washington Merry-Go-Round

Most Bitter Election In Years; Real Test of Democracy Coming

—By DREW PEARSON and ROBERT S. ALLEN

WASHINGTON—This election will go down in history as one of the most bitter in the past eighty years. Only the campaigns which re-elected Abraham Lincoln in 1864 and Woodrow Wilson in 1916 can compare with it for intense feeling.

Passions have flared, tempers have been close to the surface. There has also been a more vigorous and sometimes scorching scrutiny of the issues and the candidates than in any other recent election.

In fact, some diplomats who have spent recent years in Europe say that this election is comparable to those in France which saw the rise and fall of the Popular Front government.

Real test of this election no matter who wins, is going to be whether the electorate can forget the present partisanship and settle down to a reasonable degree of unity. That, in fact, will be the real test of democracy. If Willkie wins he is sure to face a hostile senate. If Roosevelt wins he may have to cope with a Republican house of representatives.

The next few months are likely to be a period of political cross-currents and cross-firing. If the American people can rise above it, then democracy will be safe. It will be a severe test.

Kicked Negro Cop.

ON RARE occasions in this country, presidential elections have turned on the merest whim of fate, and this one may be in that category. Most freakish year was 1916 when Charles Evans Hughes went to bed thinking himself president of the United States, and woke up to find that because he had walked through a picket line in California, that state—and the election—had turned against him.

This year a freak incident might conceivably tip the balance in a close race to Wendell Willkie. It occurred last week when Steve Early, White House secretary in charge of press relations, tangled with a Negro policeman in New York.

Early was trying to get to the president's train, and was providing interference through the police lines for Mrs. Morgenthau, Miss LeHand and various members of the White House secretariat, when three policemen, two white and one colored, stopped him. He indulged in a shoving bout with all three, but the colored cop had been operated on for a hernia and was injured.

Newspapermen on the train, some of whom have rowed vigorously with Steve, all agreed that this time he was right. However, the details of the case were unimportant.

Word immediately was flashed through Harlem and the Negro districts of Chicago that Roosevelt's secretary had kicked a colored policeman. Francis Rivers, director of the colored division of the Republican national committee, was the first to see the political importance of the situation. But close behind him was Johnny Hanes, ex-under secretary of the treasury, but still treasurer of the Hampton Institute for Negroes.

Johnny comes from North Carolina and the land of Jim Crow, but he got busy with some of the Hampton leaders to fan the flames in the big cities of the North, where the colored vote sometimes holds the balance of power.

South Warned Roosevelt.

ASIDE from its political repercussions, the Early incident illustrates two things. One is the efficiency of the Republican organization in this campaign and the inefficiency of the Democrats. The Republicans are not missing a trick. It was a matter literally of minutes before the Republicans had pounced upon the "kicked" policeman and were using it for all it was worth.

The Democrats, on the other hand, with a loose-knit, lumbering organization, have let opportunity after opportunity slip through their fingers. And if Roosevelt squeaks through it will be with no thanks to the Democratic committee.

The other deduction from the Early incident is the doubt raised in the minds of a lot of politicians as to whether it pays to woo the Negro vote except during one month before elections. They point to the fact that Mrs. Roosevelt resigned from the D. A. R. in order to champion Marion Anderson, that Roosevelt has given more relief and jobs to the Negro than any previous president—all of which now may be forgotten over one short scuffle on a station platform.

So Southern Democratic leaders are saying, "I told you so."

Note—Featured by the Negro press was the fact that Steve Early is the grandson of General Jubal Early, Confederate leader who nearly captured Washington during the Civil war. The colored press inferred that Steve still believed in the ideas of his grandfather.

Jimmy (Duke) Cromwell.

UNNOTICED because of the intense spotlight played upon the presidential drama, is an intriguing side-show in New Jersey which has the elements of love, pathos, and politics—all combined.

There, Jimmy Cromwell, former U. S. Minister to Canada, who spoke out for aid to Britain when it was still unpopular to aid the British, is putting up the race of his life for the senate. But more important is the race behind his race—a race of heart-throbs.

Cromwell is married to the richest girl in America, Doris Duke. Behind her are the Duke tobacco millions, the Duke Power company, and many other interests. Also, Jimmy himself is by no means poverty-stricken.

Boss Hague of Jersey City, not unmindful of Jimmy's wealth, was not at all averse to having him on the ticket for U. S. senator. Last year, visiting the Cromwell's palatial estate at Somerville, N. J., the Boss turned to Governor Harry Moore and remarked in awed tones: "Boy, what a place for a clam-bake!"

It was confidently expected that Jimmy Cromwell would come through with a sizeable campaign contribution—say about $250,000. However, what Boss Hague did not know at that time was that the marital relations of Jimmy Cromwell and Doris Duke were a bit strained. Furthermore, some of the Duke interests in North Carolina would be delighted to see them even more strained. So behind the scenes, some of the Duke people are credited with encouraging Boss Hague to undercut Jimmy.

For if Jimmy Cromwell wins the U. S. senate seat, Doris will probably stick by him. But if he loses, all their mutual friends, including the Duke interests, figure that she won't.

Whether she does or doesn't it already seems certain that Boss Hague will not stick by Jimmy. Inside fact is that Cromwell has not seen the Boss for a month. For Jimmy has not come through with the expected dough, and you can't win campaigns without dough in New Jersey.

So it looks as if Barbour, a Republican, and Roosevelt, a Democrat, were marked for the Jersey ballots today.

Man About Manhattan

—By GEORGE TUCKER

NEW YORK — It is painful to see a play like "Journey to Jerusalem" withdrawn after only a few days. Its failure is an indictment against the intellectual level of the average play-goer in New York.

When Maxwell Anderson wrote it he made the charitable mistake of believing people would be willing to use their imagination a little. This was bad reckoning. New York audiences never like to use their heads at any time. When they go to the theater they want intrigue and sex. When you've got shootin', you don't have to think. When you've got sex, it's all right there.

Unfortunately Mr. Anderson didn't have any pent-house intrigues or maidenly surrenders by moonlight in "Journey to Jerusalem." It was simply a moving inquiry into a challenging subject. Hence the yawns. Hence the play's withdrawal. Hence, also, a net loss of about $25,000.

THERE is a little French girl in the Ed Wynn show whose name is Lucienne. She dances with her brother Ashour. Theirs is an apache number. It is burlesque and is very amusing.

One day before she came to America she met a young French tenor named Robert Lorent. She married him and a week after war was declared he went into the army. She hasn't seen him since.

The other day came a Paris cable from Lorent. "Come home," it said. He explained he had been in a concentration camp at Toulouse.

Lucienne, her heart thumping, hurried into the Old Master's dressing room, where Wynn leisurely was removing his make-up.

"My Husbaan," she cried, "he is alife. I must go."

The clown thought this over for a moment. Then he said, "But it's impractical. You're in a show. And how would you get there?"

"Love come fust," declared Lucienne.

"Okay, but there's a lot of things to consider. If you go back to Paris, you'll probably starve. Let's bring your 'husbaan' over here."

Lucienne fell on the comedian's neck and howled for joy. That's what they're trying to do now—find some way of getting Lucienne's "husband" out of France. Meanwhile, the apache goes on. Members of the cast say they never have seen Lucienne so gay.

CITY Comptroller J. D. McGoldrick has unearthed an old loan on the city's books that it can't do anything about. The loan was a 280-year bond issue made back in 1867, and though the amount borrowed was only $278,000, its interest at maturity will amount to more than two million dollars. Don't let this annoy you to much, however. The date of maturity doesn't fall until 2147, just 207 years from now. The city assumed the debt when the little Westchester town of West Farms was absorbed by the City of New York. When you absorb a city you also absorb its obligations.

Pointed Paragraphs

The greater the difficulty the more glory there is in surmounting it.

Don't imagine because you are honest that you are above the average in intelligence.

Daily Bible Thought

Therefore all things whatsoever ye would that men should do to you, do ye even so to them: for this is the law and the prophets.—Matthew 7:12.

A Farmer's Diary

Refrigerator Lockers

—By CALVIN A. BYERS

FRIENDS of ours, who live on a farm down Columbus way, are eating strawberries now from their refrigerator locker, located at the ice and fuel company of the nearest village. This service to farmers has been in satisfactory use there for two years or more. By this means, a farmer may eat his own green corn, peas and beans, fruits, spring chickens and home-killed meats the year around.

Suppose you rent a locker. They are built in tiers of ten, on a circular wheel. By pressing a button the wheel revolves until the wanted tier is in front of the door. Then you open the door and unlock your own locker. Some families have as many as three lockers—one for vegetables, one for fruit and one for meats. The cost is $1 each per month for the first year, and regular patrons can rent extra lockers at the same rate to take care of seasonal overflow.

Meats are quick frozen for the farmers by the company. The farmer butchers and brings his meat to the plant where at a very small cost per pound, it is frozen, cut and wrapped in any size package he may desire. The packages are labeled with the name of the owner and the cut of meat contained, and stored for him in his own compartment. Small meats—chickens and rabbits—can be "quick frozen" at the local plant, as are the vegetables and fruits, but larger meats—beef and pork—are handled at a better equipped central plant and returned by truck, after ripening, to the local establishment.

"There are lots of reasons why we farmers like it," commented our friend's wife. "We always have fresh vegetables, fruits and meats; none of the flavor is lost by canning or shrinkage; there isn't any risk of spoilage in the can, and it takes a lot of work off the women. We used our locker for corn, peas and beans this year and have rented an extra one for just a while, until one will hold everything."

"How big are the lockers?" I wondered.

"They claim one will hold 200 pounds of meat. We've never tried it yet. They're about 24 by 30 inches in front and a yard deep. Most of the time one is all a farmer needs. He can stock his home refrigerator right from his locker, the year around—and that's something!"

Yes, isn't it?

Everyday Poem

—By GEORGE ELLISTON

Worry Song.

You can worry better when
You get away alone.
You can worry then until
Fear grips you, flesh and bone.

You can worry nicely then.
Nor look to right or left,
You can feel that you are done,
Of every friend bereft.

You can let old worry have
The very best of it;
You can worry best alone,
Lose courage bit by bit.

Any sage will tell you this,
A fool could tell you, too,
When you start to worrying
Talk and friends pursue.
